In appreciation of devoted friendship, this book is presented to Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Huggins
(Uncle Jess and Aunt Lilly) by Associate Author, Hilbert A. Fisher.

“The Eternity that is gone and the Eternity to come Unite in your life.

Your ancestors gave you
Life and the power-to-do,
Your posterity will carry on
Your desires and aspirations,
And you—between the two—
Must cherish and increase
What you have received—
A worthy link in the unending chain.”

James L. Fisher, distinguished citizen, loyal churchman and beloved friend of many, died at his home in Salisbury, N. C., on May 7, 1951.

One of the original and guiding spirits behind this book, Mr. Fisher devoted much of his time and talent to the difficult and exacting task of compiling a great portion of the information herein.

In recognition of a lifetime worthily spent in devotion to family, friends and community, the associate authors respectfully dedicate this effort to his memory, and as he would want it, to all the progenitors of the Fishers, in whom he was so greatly interested.

Foreword

FROM the very beginning of planning for this volume your associate authors were conscious that they were performing a task that had been badly neglected. Though late, we believe it will be appreciated by those of our group now living as well as those yet to be born.

At this stage of our effort we believe it well that we set out what we wish to record and relate the historical facts in relation to the times in which our people lived, as well as conditions under which they lived.

With this in mind we find that the work falls into three very distinct divisions: their home in the Palatinate, Germany, their home in Pennsylvania, and finally their settling in North Carolina.

It should not be overlooked here that these changes in the abode of our forebears were not caused by the changing fancies of their lives, but by the constant persecutions of the tyrannical despots of that day. As evidence of the love they held for their native land, they brought with them many customs and modes of living of that day. Not until many of their homes were burned and their fields devastated did they decide to seek another home. Looking back over the history of our foreparents, we are convinced that they were led by the hand of an all-wise God and that we are the beneficiaries of their effort to settle where they could work out their destiny according to the dictates of their consciences. This haven was found in America, a land we call our own!

In addition to giving you an accurate historical background of the Fisher family, dating from 1727, the year Jacob Fisher with his family sailed for America, we are presenting as complete a family history as is possible to secure. This history includes the names of most of the descendants from Immigrant Jacob Fisher through 1958. This should be interesting not only to us now living, but to all that are yet to be born. As future years come and go, this information will become more valuable.

We also intend to give as full an account of the main accomplishments of our family as we are able to assemble. This will be principally in the following fields: educational, ministerial, professional, business, agricultural, and services in behalf of our country.

In preparing this historical record of our ancestors we would like it understood that we are not possessed of a superiority complex, believing we are from super men and women; but we do claim that we are descendants of an honorable people who were like their neighbors, standing for and ready to strive for the noble things of life. This qualified them to become ideal citizens of the new country, America, which was then being forged out of an unconquered wilderness. In understanding that these people stood for and strove to obtain these high ideals, we feel that we are justified in being proud that we are numbered among their descendants.

It should be recorded in this preface that the uncovering of our hidden history was an arduous task. This was due mainly to the disinterest of our people, and due also to the fact that the unfortunate Civil War separated our southern families from their northern relatives. Incidentally, I will state that a considerable part of this handicap was removed when contact was made with Hon. John S. Fisher, then Governor of Pennsylvania, and later with Rev. Charles G. Fisher, grandson of the eminent preacher and editor of the Reformed Church Messenger, Samuel R. Fisher, D.D. This will be more fully treated later.

While we have tried to assemble as many as possible of the essential facts connected with the history of our people and are very happy to present to you the results of our effort, and while we have been, with the assistance of others, agreeably successful, yet there remains a fruitful field for further research. We sincerely hope there will arise from the younger boys and girls of future generations those who will become interested in adding to our feeble efforts.

The Fisher Coat of Arms

HERALDIC BLAZONING OF THE COAT OF ARMS OF THE FISHER FAMILY

Shield: Azure (blue)—a dolphin naiant (swimming)—argent (silver)

Crest: A kingfisher proper (natural color)

IN HERALDRY, blue is the color of truth, loyalty, honesty and happiness while silver denotes purity, eloquence, virginity and innocence.

The Fisher coat of arms is a very simple one. This is due to its antiquity. In its incipency heraldry signified merely the markings of shields. This was for the purpose of identification. Encased in a helmet and armor the fighting man's features were hidden from view. As it was necessary that he be recognized by his friends, and for him to distinguish friend from foe, he adopted individual markings upon his shield, the most prominent thing about him. The markings were at first very simple.

The dolphin, called king of fish, upon the arms, and possibly the kingfisher in the crest constitute a canting, rebec or armes parlantes (meaning speaking arms) upon the name. A canting is a heraldic pun upon the family name. Inasmuch as the use of surnames and the carrying of marked shields began at about the same time, some families took their name from the charge upon their arms and some families adopted a charge upon their arms which bespoke their name. Thus we find bulls upon the Bulwinkle arms, apples upon the Appleton shield and foxes, called reynard in French, upon the Reynolds shield.

Many crests are borne by minor branches of the Fisher family but the kingfisher is the basic crest of the family as a whole. There is no motto and this is also due to the antiquity of the arms. The custom of displaying mottoes with Germanic arms did not originate until about the fifteenth century. The Fisher grant of arms long antedates this period.

The name Fisher seems to have been originally spelled Fischer. It is so spelled today in Germany and in many parts of Pennsylvania. The name is of Teutonic origin. It means exactly what it says—a fisher or a fisherman. Whether this name is occupational or a place name, we have no way of telling. It may have been derived from the fact that the early ancestors were fishermen. It may have been adopted because the family lived near a place where fishing was common or where fish were plentiful.

We have gone to great lengths to see that the coat of arms presented here is authentic and as accurate as possible.

It is interesting to learn that the German town of our ancestors also has a coat of arms. In 1446, the coat of arms of Freinsheim was the letter “F” surrounded by two bunches of grapes. The town was originally owned by a few nobles, but in 1471 the Electoral Prince of the Pfalz region became the sole owner. The upper half of the coat of arms of Freinsheim then became the coat of arms of the Prince, and the lower half remained the letter “F” surrounded by two bunches of grapes. In 1514 it was attached to the “Iron Door,” and is still the coat of arms of Freinsheim. On the building that was formerly the city hall, there still remains a colored sign with the coat of arms of Freinsheim dating from 1588.

A Personal Word

By
James L. Fisher
1873-1951

THE PURPOSE of this page is to enable me to relate some personal experiences encountered in my efforts to assemble the vital information to make this volume possible. And it should be said that these experiences came about not on account of me personally, but rather you whom I represented. Too, it gives me an opportunity to express my personal appreciation to certain individuals whose assistance was essential in this undertaking.

First, it should be related that my uncle, William H. Fisher, was my inspiration and counselor. In fact, it was he who had spent many years in an endeavor to assemble the information necessary to compose a history of our family. He found it very intricate and difficult, and before his death he interested me and turned over such facts as he had been able to secure, and committed me to the prosecution of the undertaking until satisfactory information was in hand for a family history.

It is almost unbelievable that for forty-five years I floundered around, exploring leads here and there without satisfactory results. At this time an incident occurred that led to a marvelous discovery. Hon. John S. Fisher had just been elected Governor of Pennsylvania (years 1926-1930) ; and through the advice of a friend of Governor Fisher's, I wrote him and indicated how eager our North Carolina Fishers were to find some of their cousins in the North, since our people had come South many years before. In reply, he was very gracious by saying they were equally as eager to make contact with us. He expressed no doubt as to our kinship, and, after I pointed out to him certain leaders whom we believed to be our kin, he assured me that we would be able to solve our problem. Among those pointed out was Dr. Samuel Reed Fisher, prominent preacher and editor of the Reformed Church Messenger. Dr. Fisher was named as a visitor in the home of my grandfather, Solomon Fisher, when my father was just a small boy. It was understood that it was an incident of one cousin visiting another. To our delight three letters were found from Dr. Fisher to my grandfather Solomon, whom he addressed as "Dear Cousin." These letters, dating back to 1871, were tucked away in a dusty old shoe box, and it was some sixty years after they had been written that they were discovered in the home of William Henry Fisher some years after his death. It is quite interesting that these three letters, which had been so carelessly preserved, should have been the really authentic documents linking the southern branch of the family with those in Pennsylvania. These letters were communicated to Governor Fisher, who took them as conclusive evidence that we had established definite information as to our relationship. He immediately invited me to meet him in Philadelphia, to be his guest, and said he would introduce me to my new-found cousins and would take me to the old Fisher homestead, which was still standing. I accepted his invitation and met him as requested. Frankly, while this is rather personal, I never spent a more wonderful day in my life. We visited Valley Forge, where our patriot George Fisher served as bodyguard to General Washington; the old Fisher home near East Greenville; New Goshenhoppen Reformed Church, where our ancestors belonged and took an active part and where many of our people were buried; Pennsburg, where a record is kept giving an account of the visit of Jacob Fisher, of North Carolina, to attend a family reunion at the Fisher Homestead, on his return taking his nephew George, then a mere boy of six, with him back to North Carolina (this George became the great-grandfather of many of us); and other historical points interesting to us. To make the day complete for me, he had arranged for a banquet-dinner held in the Union Club of Philadelphia, in my honor. To this banquet a large group of our cousins were invited. I will never be able to express my joy of that day. It was the culmination of a long sought climax!

After many further proofs turned up, I found that our northern cousins had established a definite contact back to Freinsheim, Germany, whence our people came. There was published a book giving step by step the history of our ancestry. A copy of this book, Jacob Fisher, The Immigrant, is now in my hands, having been presented to me by Governor Fisher. In this connection, it should be stated that Governor Fisher was invited to attend our own Fisher reunion at Lowerstone Church in 1931. He accepted and delivered the main address. Many courtesies were accorded him and his daughter, Mrs. Tatnall Brown, who accompanied him. He afterwards visited here, and as before, spent his stay in my home. He seemed delighted with his new cousins.

Many additional proofs of our ancestral line have been found, which will be brought out in further references.

While there will be proper recognition given to those assisting in this undertaking, I want to express my personal pleasure in several specific cases. First, it is to my associates, Dr. A. W. Fisher and Dr. Hilbert Fisher, in the preparation of this history. Second, it is to my daughter, Mrs. Mary Katharine Kluttz, who over a period of many years acted as stenographer and secretary without reward or thought of reward. Without her assistance this book would not have been possible.

Taking a backward look over the years consumed in carrying on this research, many times meeting discouragement, yet when the right end of the tangled mass of thread was discovered, it unraveled to a marvelous degree; and I must confess that the whole effort has been more like a romance than a task. I trust that you who may become the beneficiaries of this ancestral history will regard the effort as being worth while.

I trust that those who read this volume will see the real purpose and intent of the authors to present this effort in an informal running story of the activities and accomplishments of our ancestors rather than a formal collection of cold historical facts.

Proofs of Line of the Fisher Ancestry

1. History of Jacob Fisher, the Immigrant, published by Ralph Beaver Strassburger, complimentary to Gov. John S. Fisher.

Quoting: "Among the descendants of Jacob Fischer was the late Rev. Samuel R. Fisher, D.D., and his son, Rev. Charles G. Fisher, of the Reformed Church. The line of descent is: First generation, Jacob Fisher, died March 8, 1748; second, Herman Fisher, died in 1760; third, George Fisher, baptized August 29, 1739; fourth, Wendel Fisher, born May 6, 1782; fifth, Samuel Reed Fisher, D.D., born June 2, 1810; sixth, Rev. Charles G. Fisher, D.D., of Philadelphia."

It should be noted here that the father of Dr. Samuel R. Fisher, Wendel Fisher, was a son of George Fisher, our patriot ancestor.

2. Letter of Barbara Fisher, dated May 25, 1791, written in German script, to her son George Fisher in North Carolina:

Superscription: "This letter for George Fisher in North Carolina from Barbara Fisher."

May 25, 1791

TO GEORGE FISHER, JR.:

Greetings to you and your wife and children. As far as we are concerned, we are still well and in good health as long as God wills, and I wish that these few lines find you and your family in the same condition.

By Klotz I send you a scythe, a whetstone and a Testament.

Your father has sold his place where he lived. He still kept 23 acres of land at Cold Spring and he built himself a house and barn and already lives in it since late fall.

Your sister Catharina has moved to Pittsburg; however we have had no news from her so far. Your sister Anna Maria is also no longer at home, and your sister Susanna is also no longer at home; your brother Herman is also no longer at home and your brother Philip is learning the blacksmith and iron working trade at the Trappe.* All of this, I,

*Now called Providence, Pa.

Barbara Fisher, your mother, wrote and I do not know anything further to write you. Your sister Christiana is still at home and your brother Jacob and your brother Wendel are still at home.

So much from me,
BARBARA FISHER

Note made by Samuel Reed Fisher: "Letter of Grandmother Fisher to her son George Fisher in Cabarrus County, N. C."

3. Three letters of Dr. Samuel R. Fisher, dated Philadelphia, Oct. 2, 1871, Dec. 15, 1873, and Dec. 18, 1874, to Solomon Fisher, the grandfather of many of us, whom he addressed "Dear Cousin":

Philadelphia, Pa.
October 2, 1871

DEAR COUSIN:

My engagements have been such since my return, that I have not been able to write as early as I desired. You have, however, had some intelligence of me through the "Messenger," which has, I trust, commenced paying you its visits. I wrote a short article on my return. You will find a longer one in this week's paper. Next week I will give a full account of your church. Then will follow some account of the country; and after that some account of the country along the route of travel. This will run through two, perhaps three numbers. These matters, I hope, will be acceptable to your people, as well as to the church generally, and be the means of doing good, awakening a fresh interest in our churches in the South. I trust we shall have the privilege of sending quite a number of "Messengers" to your section of country.

After I left you, I took the cars at Salisbury on Monday, spent the night at Richmond, and the following night with my brother at Alexandria. My brother and family were much gratified at hearing from you all. I spent Wednesday with him, and on Thursday morning started for home, which place I reached on Thursday about 2 o'clock, P. M. I found Mrs. Fisher well. My daughter had not returned home. She was with her brother when I left; and it seems, shortly after, had a severe attack of rheumatism, from which she has not yet entirely recovered. Mrs. F. & I propose going up to my son's on Thursday morning of this week, when she will return with us in the evening.

All have been much interested in what I have had to relate. My brother Daniel resides in the city, and clerks in our office. My oldest brother Jacob was with us on Friday night. They are both well; and express a great desire to see you all.

I have not heard from our Canada friends lately. I will send them copies of the "Messenger," containing an account of my visit to you. Perhaps it will possess some interest from them.

I send enclosed the promised recipe for curing meat. Try it, and see if it does not do all I promise.

I shall long remember my visit to you with deep interest; and trust it will not also be soon forgotten by you. It would afford me great pleasure to repeat it soon again, if at all in my power. I certainly am under many obligations to you all, for the many kind attentions shown me during my stay in your midst. I regret I could not get to Concord, or to see those residing west of Salisbury.

My kind regards to Mrs. F., your children and all other friends. Please let me hear from you.

Your affectionate cousin,
/s/ SAML. R. FISHER

P. S. I have just found a stray photograph, and send it. I have none of Mrs. F. She has not yet been willing to sit for her photograph.

Part of a letter in the same handwriting:

Philadelphia, Pa.
December 15, 1873

DEAR COUSIN:

Several weeks have elapsed, since I heard of the death of your dear wife; and only an unusual press of business could have prevented me ere this, from penning a few words of sympathy with you in your great loss. You can scarcely imagine what a shock the intelligence of her death occasioned me. Only some eighteen months before, had I seen her in her own dear home, moving around busily among the members of her household, and manifesting that activity and special interest in her domestic affairs, which ever characterized her. Little did I then think, that she would be the first of that family group to be summoned to her eternal reward.

Such, however, is human life. None of us have any guarantee for its continuance, however flattering may be the prospects to human view. It is consoling to know that, for the children of God in Christ, a better life is provided beyond the present; and there is reason to believe, that she is now enjoying its blessed fruition in all its fullness. Those who tarry behind for a season, shall sooner or later follow her, and then that fruition shall, if possible, be still more complete. With thoughts like these comfort yourself, and let them influence you to maintain a constant nearness to your Saviour, so that their blessed results shall be fully verified in your experience.

Accept kindly my expression of sympathy, with you and all the members of your household in the sore affliction with which

P. S. [at top of first page] Cousin Joseph, Uncle Philips son, the only one living of that family, still writes poetry. You will find an effusion of his in this week's "Messenger."

Philadelphia, Pa.
December 18, 1874

DEAR COUSIN:

Mr. Denny wrote me a few days ago, that he has resigned the pastorate of your charge. I regretted to hear this; as I hoped he was acceptable and was doing good in your midst.

Doubtless you will be anxious about getting a successor. It is important that you should get a man of the right spirit, who will labor earnestly and faithfully for the true interests of your charge. If I can in any way help you to the right kind of a man, and you wish my services, I will see what I can do for you. Of course, I would not recommend any one, unless I really believed he would suit your people in every respect. I had one in mind who would have answered most admirably. He has, however, just settled down in a charge. Perhaps, I can find another.

Will you let me know, if you wish me to do anything for you; and if so, state how many congregations he will have to preach to and what can be done for his support, etc.

My kind regards to all your family and other friends. I shall be pleased to hear from you all.

My health continues as usual, though I am still very hard worked.

Yours very truly,
/s/ SAML. R. FISHER

4. Letter of Rev. Charles G. Fisher, son of Dr. Samuel Reed Fisher, to George Monroe Fisher, eldest son of Solomon Fisher, and an uncle of some of us:

REFORMED CHURCH PUBLICATION HOUSE

REV. CHAS. G. FISHER
PROPRIETOR

No. 907 Arch Street
Philadelphia, March 26, 1890

G. M. Fisher,

DEAR COUSIN:

Yours of Jany. 18th, 1890, I find has not been answered. I certainly owe you an apology for neglecting to do so, but having much on my hands at the time it was received I put it off until I was at leisure and thus I overlooked it.

I examined father's record as to ancestors, but fear I cannot give you much information.

I find that Herman Fisher came from the Palatinate, Germany, and settled in Hanover Township, Montgomery Co., Pa., 40 miles from Philadelphia. He had 5 sons and 5 daughters. The eldest son [Jacob] settled in Rowan Co., N. C., and is burried in cemetery attached to Grace Reformed Church (Lowerstone—correct—grave is there). His third son was George—had [sons] John, Joseph, George—and George [Jr.] settled in N. C.

This is all I can give you.

A lady a descendant of the Fishers wrote me she had been hunting up the ancestry but afterwards found that our side of the family were not of those who were entitled to the estate in Germany.

I should be pleased to come down to N. Carolina and see our relatives there and I hope to do so some of these days. Father enjoyed his visits there.

I am the only son and child of my father Rev. Samuel R. and I have 2 sons and 2 daughters living. There is only one of my uncles living Jonas Fisher who is 77 yrs. old and lives in Alexandria, Va. I am in my 53rd year.

With kind regards I am

Yours truly,
/s/ CHAS. G. FISHER

5. Book presented to Samuel R. Fisher, next to the youngest son of Solomon Fisher, who was a namesake of Dr. Samuel R. Fisher, with a notation to that effect made on the flyleaf. Evidently this followed his visit here.
6. Notation made by David Schultze in one of his diaries, now in the Schwenkfelder Library at Pennsburg, Pa., giving the account of a Fisher family reunion held there in 1774 and attended by Jacob Fisher, of North Carolina, on his return to North Carolina taking with him George Fisher, Jr., his nephew and our ancestor.

Jacob Fisher and His Family

From the Rhine to the Yadkin

THIS is the story of John Jacob Fischer [Fisher], citizen of Germany by birth, settler in America by choice—of his native town of Freinsheim, his adopted land of Pennsylvania, and finally, of his descendants, who came southward to the rolling hills of the Yadkin Valley of North Carolina.

The Palatinate

Lying west of the Rhine River in Germany is the territory known as the Palatinate, a land area consisting of over 2,000 square miles with a pre-war population of about one million. Its capital city is Speyer, located near the Rhine River.

In the Rhine Palatinate, part of the valley of the most used waterway in the world—the Rhine River—there are river bottoms and hilly lands which are noted for fruitful vines and orchards. It was not by accident that this rich section of sunny wine land has been called the Palatinate—“Land of Palaces.” The soil is fertile and the landscape attractive, and it is said by those who have visited the homeland, to be the most beautiful in Germany.

Although this section did not lay claim to any unusual political or industrial significance, its fortunes or misfortunes were influenced by the whims of the princes who happened to be in control of its destiny. The Rhine Valley was peopled early in history, as the river was a natural line of communication, and the valley afforded, in ancient times, ease of travel from north to south. Extending for 300 kilometers from Switzerland to Mainz, it was a super-highway on which one could travel quickly, and from which one could easily seek the passes that led to the country on each side of the river. This ease of communication also brought disadvantages, for it became the battlefield of Europe, bringing with it the recurring horrors of war. However, be that as it may, the country was ideally adapted to the needs and wishes of our ancestors who were seeking to live lives of peace and contentment by fostering those higher ideals that come about through industry, education and religion.

It might be said that our forebears were subjected to about the worst of the misfortunes of the Old World, most of which came about from the evil and selfish passions of men and women who, in one way or another, came into power. Early in the recorded history of western Europe, the legions of Caesar swept to the banks of the Rhine, which became the natural line of defense of the Roman civilization against the Germanic tribes to the east. As the Roman Empire fell in decay, the Alamans took over, only in turn to be ravaged by the Huns, who devastated the country anew. And so, down through the ages, the history of the Palatinate is one of wars and treaties.

Since this background of conflict and suffering must have been a pertinent factor in the emigration of Jacob Fischer to the New World, the following is quoted, by permission, from Rhinelanders on the Yadkin, magnificently compiled and written by Dr. Carl Hammer, member of the faculty of Vanderbilt University:

“The Thirty Years War in Germany brought such desolation that some sections hardly recovered before the lapse of two centuries. It was a long series of bloody conflicts and endless depredations that brought inconceivable ruin and abject human misery in their train. Only scant alleviation came through the Peace of Westphalia: marauding bands still roamed the countryside, robbing and murdering a larger percentage of whatever peasants had somehow managed to survive the scourge of the Imperial troops on the one hand, and of the Swedes on the other. Certain areas lost no less than three-fourths of their population during the war and its aftermath.

“Hardly any part of Germany had suffered worse from the repeated devastations than that beautiful province on the left bank of the Rhine known as the Palatinate. There, and in the adjoining Rhenish territories, the luckless inhabitants endured untold horrors of starvation, disease, and torture. The lovely old university town of Heidelberg fell a victim to the Catholic armies of Count Tilly (chiefly infamous for his butchery at Magdeburg), who plundered the priceless library and presented his loot to the Pope.

“No section, however, was quicker to recover in some measure than the fertile, sunny Rhineland, with its industrious farmers and artisans. Even the sorely-tried Palatinate took new hope when the Elector Karl Ludwig, son of the unfortunate 'Winter King,' ascended the throne. The wise and benevolent ruler accomplished much for the social and material betterment of his land, but the disaster was too great to be repaired in a short while. Another chain of misfortunes was already taking shape—a succession of terrors which were to surpass even those of the religious wars.

“King Louis XIV, of France, 'le Grand Monarque,' seeing that Germany was prostrate, disunited, and threatened by the Turks in Hungary, thought the moment opportune for ravaging and burning extensive districts along the Rhine. The pillaging of some sections was repeated so often that the inhabitants did not dare cultivate their fields for three years. Unable to defend his realm, the hapless Elector was forced to pay tribute to the 'Most Christian King' of the French. Karl Ludwig died in 1680, the very year in which another incursion took place. Under his unworthy successors, the people were entirely at the mercy of Louis. The brutal attacks of 1674 and 1680 formed a mere prelude to the cruelest invasion of all, which Louis began in 1688, again with no declaration of war. This time he based his action on a preposterous claim to the Palatinate through 'inheritance,' because the late elector's daughter, Elizabeth Charlotte ('Liselotte') had married the Duke of Orleans. The real purpose of the French king was to make the Rhine country a desert and keep it a barren waste, lest it serve as a granary and base of attack for his enemies, chiefly the Emperor Leopold and the Great Elector (of Brandenburg, which later became the Kingdom of Prussia). These two were joined by William III, of England, in a coalition which Louis hoped to nip in the bud. In February, 1689, the Emperor declared war against France, thus officially aligning himself with a North German alliance of Brandenburg, Hanover, Saxony, and Hesse-Cassel. Early in that year the French, who had advanced far into German territory, were forced back to the Rhine; this retreat was the occasion for the very worst despoliation that the Rhenish provinces had to undergo.

“Central Europe experienced a bitterly cold winter in 1688-1689, and it was then that the city of Mannheim was burned and the splendid castle of Heidelberg was left partly in ruins. Not long afterward the same fate befell Worms and Speyer, once the scenes of imperial pomp and great prosperity. The inhabitants of the smaller towns and countless villages fared even worse, as they fell more easily a prey to the greed and cruelty of the French troops. Nearly five hundred thousand Palatinate inhabitants were driven forth into the snow from their burning homes. Those who were not cut down by the enemy, or who escaped immediate death from the terrible cold, faced not only exile, but famine and pestilence. Holland was the immediate refuge for whoever was able to flee the country. The seaports of the Netherlands and England formed the gateway to America. A German colony already established in Pennsylvania offered hope to the more venturesome souls among the survivors."

Freinsheim

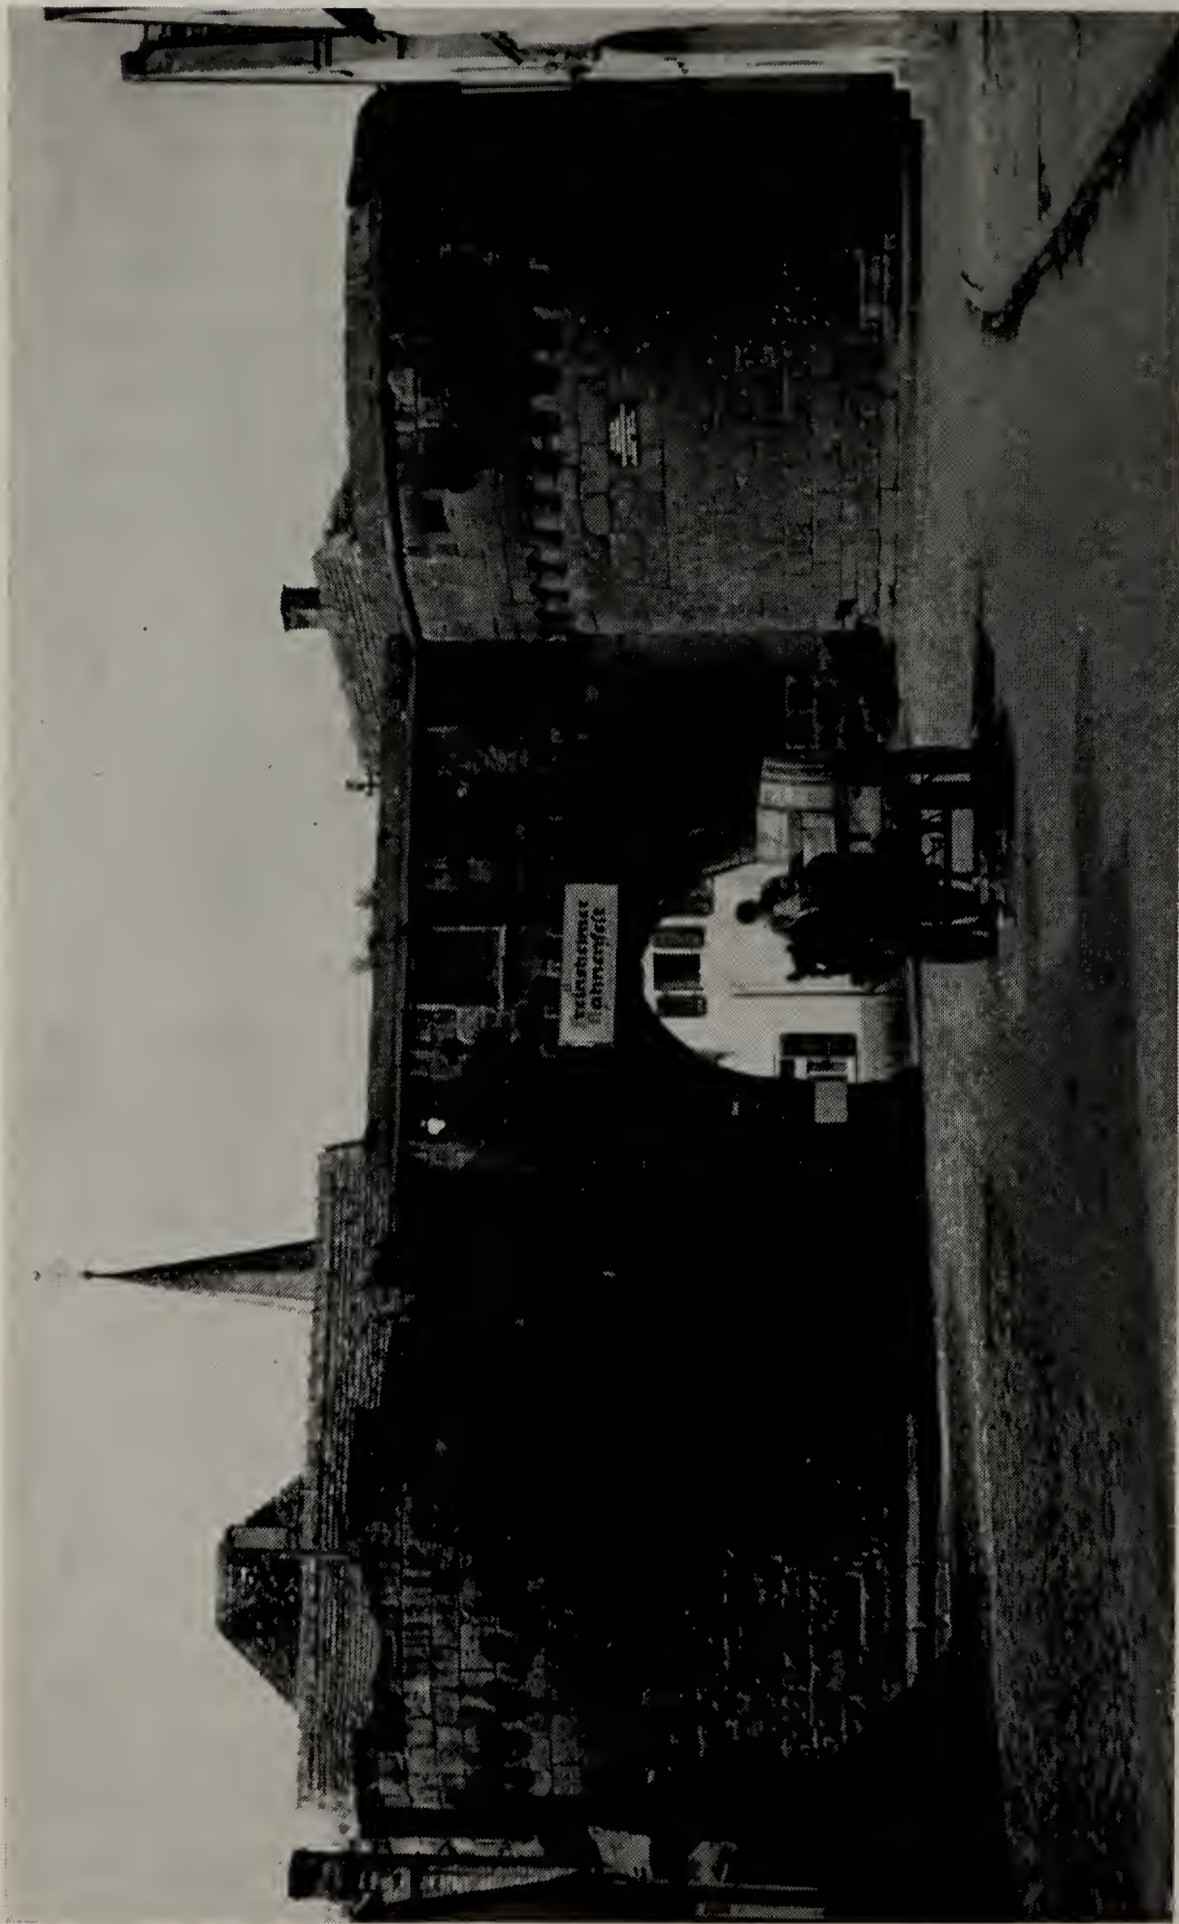

Sometime around 500 A.D. the village of Freinsheim was founded, about fifteen miles west of the river town of Ludwigshafen, and about twenty miles southwest of the city of Worms. Never to be a booming metropolis, Freinsheim was basically a village home for the farmers who tilled the vineyards stretching in all directions. In an area where for centuries pillaging bands had intermittently roamed, those who farmed by day sought refuge within the walls of the town at nightfall.

This small town, which was the home of Jacob Fischer, sits today in great measure unchanged from his times. Modern Freinsheim is described vividly through the eyes of Reverend Roy L. Fisher, Chaplain, as follows:

"As we approached the village, the vineyards laden with ripe grapes commanded our attention, along with the gardens and orchards, and grain patches that had recently been harvested.

"This village, like many other villages in Germany, reminds one of a colony of homes surrounded by numerous small tracts of land separated either by a narrow terrace or hedge from which most of the inhabitants gain a livelihood. Here the chief beast of burden is the cow, which one sees pulling the wagon along the road or the plow in the field.

"After we entered the village through the east gate, we moved at a slight elevation toward the west gate over narrow cobblestone streets, with houses joined hard against each other on either side, until we reached the summit of the village just inside the west gate. Here we were immediately in front of the village church, which reflected great age. Our attention was attracted to a stork's nest on the roof of the church.

"Scarcely fifty yards below the church by the route which we entered is the town hall (Rathaus). Certain public records are kept here, as well as legal and ecclesiastical records. The Burgo-master, who is the town mayor, is elected by the people and serves as the administrator of all records and documents pertaining to that community. It was here that we were permitted to see the original baptismal records of our early ancestors, remarkably well preserved in a ledger type book.

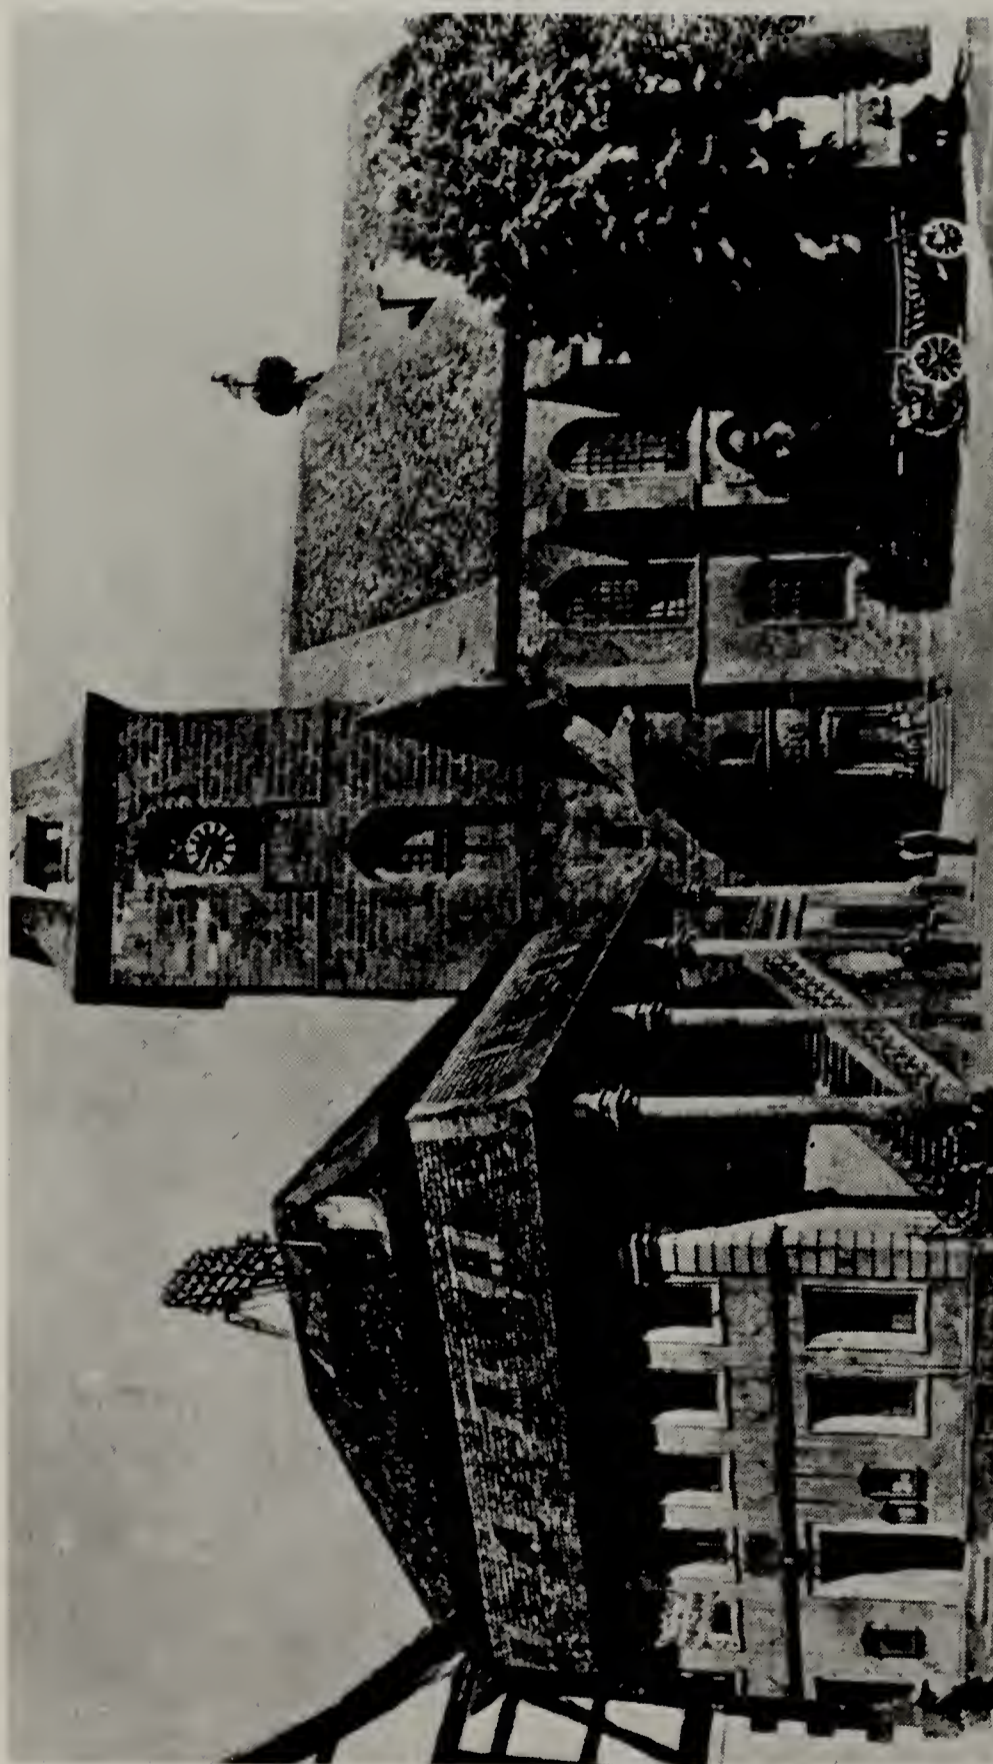

"The wall which enclosed the inner part of the village, we were told, was constructed about the year 1750 under King Frederick the Great. The wall was constructed about eight feet thick. In certain sections of the wall there are miniature dwellings where some of the inhabitants live.

"We made brief visits to two of the homes on Martin Street. We first called into the home of Martin Fischer and then to the home of the widow of Fritz Fischer and her son Paul. The people were very courteous and hospitable. They did not have many of the modern conveniences in their homes. Each of their homes appeared to be of sufficient age to date back beyond 1725, when our ancestors came to America. Every building inside the village wall, as well as the streets, had the stamp of age indelibly inscribed upon it.

"As we were being guided through the village, we were conscious of the fact that we were walking where our ancestors had walked several hundred years ago with not too many changes in the way of life. We thought how different life would have been for us had it not been for the decision of our ancestors to come to America.

"Freinsheim is especially noted for its large fruit market to which the city dwellers from Worms, Kaiserlautern, Mannheim, Speyer, and others come to obtain a part of their fruit which consists of apples, peaches, pears, apricots, grapes, and some vegetables.

"Except for a tile factory which employs a small number of laborers, a few grocery and dry goods stores, souvenir shops and garages, the inhabitants gain their livelihood from the vineyards,

The steps lead to upstairs of the City Hall. It was constructed in 1750, in the baroque style. In the rear is the church, dating from 1245, rebuilt in 1470, and its present shape dating from 1707. One can easily see the Renaissance doorway, constructed in 1517. It was a Catholic church when it was first built, then it was changed to The Church of the Reformation in 1540, then in 1818 it was changed to Protestant. The space to the right of the City Hall is the market place. One is now in the center of old Freinsheim.

orchards, and grain patches. This village was spared the terror and destruction of the bombing that had made ghost towns out of so many other villages and had destroyed to a great extent almost all the towns and cities of Germany. Life here was perhaps at its best in this period of reconstruction."

Religious Influence

It should be noted here that our early ancestors of the Palatinate were in close association with the greatest revolution that has ever taken place in human experience—the Reformation of the Christian Church in the seventeenth century, led by Martin Luther, Zwingli, Calvin, and other contemporaries. Heidelberg and Worms, cities that figured so prominently in the Reformation, were located near Freinsheim. There is no doubt that this great movement had much influence over our people, and it should be a source of pride to us that our ancestors were aligned with the Reformation forces. While Luther and Zwingli differed in their theological interpretations, their followers were not affected greatly by these differences, and it has been very noticeable that our people could pass from the Lutheran to the Reformed Church with the greatest ease. The church of our ancestors in Freinsheim was Reformed. Master Sergeant Marcus H. Fisher, after a visit in 1945 to this church in which Jacob Fischer once worshipped, described it thus:

"I found the church to be the most imposing building in the small town, indicating the high esteem in which it was held by our ancestors. The church, built originally by the people of Worms, an important city nearby, was started in 1480 and finished in 1490.

"I was struck by the seriousness of the people who came for church services, it being very evident that they came for worship and nothing else. The whole service was most interesting and made an impression I will never forget. I knelt down, possibly in the same pew in which my ancestors worshipped, and thanked God for bringing me safely through as He had, and when I left I felt as if I had been treading on Holy ground.

"It is interesting to know that the invading armies of many years have never damaged the church to a great extent, and it stands well preserved to this day. However, the destructive hands of Louis XIV destroyed all the records of the congregation prior to 1698. Fortunately for us, they have the baptismal records of our ancestors.

“After seeing that beautiful land as I did, it is regrettable that our ancestors had to undergo so much privation caused by ruthless warring rulers; however, such was the case and our people became refugees. But how fortunate we are that they were directed to America.”

As has been noted, the armies of France destroyed the records of the church in Freinsheim in 1698. But beginning in 1699 there is duly recorded the baptisms of the children of John Jacob Fischer, as shown in the following extracts from the church ledger, on the pages noted:

We have discussed some of the background that caused Jacob Fischer to leave his native land. As a boy, he could hear nothing but tales of the awful wars from his people, and with his eyes he could see nothing but a devastated countryside caused by the most cruel of all wars—religious wars. No wonder that the church in Freinsheim became Protestant; no wonder the people began to open their eyes after Martin Luther translated the Bible into everyday German the people could read. And when a man by the name of Gutenberg invented printing, the need for common education of all men was stimulated beyond belief.

What would Jacob Fischer and his descendants have witnessed if he had not migrated to America? The answer can be summed up in three words: almost continuous strife. He would have, or his descendants would have, observed the wars concerning the succession of Spain (1701-1714); the wars of the succession of Poland (1733-1735); the wars of succession of Austria (1741-1749); the Seven Years War (1756-1765); the wars of the French Revolution, which pillaged, ruined and taxed the country. His children would have seen the passing of the Napoleonic armies; they would have seen the government change five times between 1792 and 1801. By the Peace of Luneville, the entire west bank of the Rhine River was delivered to France, and the Palatinate was under a French Sous-Prefet in 1814. His children would have experienced Austrian domination, and later the Russians when they advanced to aid in the defeat of Napoleon. In 1815, the government became Austrian-Bavarian, and by the Second Treaty of Paris, all of the Palatinate reverted to Bavaria. The city of Speyer became the capital of the Palatinate and the seat of the Governor in 1838. If the descendants of Jacob Fischer had lived through all this, then they might have been drafted into the Franco-Prussian War of 1870-71. The Palatinate was not touched in the 1914-18 War, but it was occupied by French soldiers from 1918 until June 30, 1930. The town of Freinsheim was not destroyed in the War of 1940-45, but since March 22, 1945, it has again been occupied by French soldiers. As in every town in Europe, there are monuments to the soldier dead. On the walls of the church in Freinsheim, there are the names of the men who gave their lives in the War of 1870-71, and in the 1914-18 War. No doubt, they have not found time to get around to listing the dead from the last war, or rather the missing, for many are buried in unmarked graves from Norway to Stalingrad to Africa, and many are still prisoners in the hands of the Russians. The lack of young men is evident in Germany. Such would have been the fate of the Fischers if Jacob had not migrated to America. And now, Germany stands upon the threshold of another war, this one to be more terrible than any that have gone before. But the chances are, little Freinsheim, snug in its valley, will be there with life going on in some fashion after it is over.

Reluctant to Leave the Homeland

It should not be hard for us to understand why our ancestors did not join their neighbors earlier in their flight from the inevitable, since we are familiar with one of the outstanding characteristics of our people—not to move readily by emotions, but rather by sound reasoning. They had been reared in a land that had given them what they desired in the way of a home—scenic beauty, fertile soil, attractive climate, finally religious freedom, and much desired congenial neighbors. What more could they wish for in a land they claimed as their own—except to be free from the blood-thirsty tyrants that were constantly over-running and destroying their homes as well as their crops, including their vineyards which were their pride? All this was not brought about directly on account of the fury of some enemy, but rather they were standing as a barrier between warring factions led by ruthless men trying to satisfy their wicked desires.

Refugees by the thousands had been fleeing the country for more than a quarter of a century, but not until every vestige of hope had vanished did Jacob Fischer and family give up. But that time finally came and they, with some of their close neighbors—the Anteses, Bittings, and Weands—began to get together such belongings as they could lug along with them. This was a sad day for that forlorn family, but the beginning of a wonderful new life! No one should fail to see the hand of an all-wise and loving God directing the destiny of our ancestors which brought to us a noble heritage.

It was a long and arduous journey, following the course taken by the many who had gone before. They went first to Holland, where they received the blessings of the Dutch but were unable to get material aid. England was at that time colonizing possessions in America, and was glad to assist these desirable refugees to their fast-growing settlements in the New World. Their aid was accepted, and on October 2, 1727, Jacob Fischer, wife Sophia Elizabeth, and children, stepped from the ship Adventurer to the soil of a glorious land, with opportunities beyond comprehension. This land was America!

Note: This date October 2, 1727 needs clarification, and in order that it be better understood the following references are given:

1. Letter of Charles W. Fisher, grandson of Dr. Samuel Reed Fisher, dated August 2, 1930, as follows:

“What information I have regarding the early members of the Fisher family who came to this country, I obtained from Dr. Willoughby H. Reed, Jeffersonville, Pa. Dr. Reed has made an extensive hunt among the family records of the Reed family, and, as you may know, my great grandfather has married a Reed, which was the middle name of their son, my grandfather, Samuel Reed Fisher.

“The first member of the Fisher family to come to America, according to these records, was Jacob Fisher, from Freinsheim, Germany. He came in the Adventurer, landing in Philadelphia October 2, 1727. He had six children: Herman, Anna Maria, John Philip, John Henry, Maria Magdalena, Johanna Margaret.”

2. Letter of Joseph I. Gardner, dated April 12, 1936, as follows:

“I have before me the three volumes of Pennsylvania German Pioneers which were published by the Pennsylvania German Society in 1934, giving ship lists of foreigners landing at Philadelphia from 1727 to 1808. On Page 15, Vol. I of Pennsylvania German Pioneers I find a Jacob Fisher and also a Daniel Borman who came on the ship Adventurer and arrived in Philadelphia Oct. 1727.

“Now I am wondering if it is possible that 1727 is the date of the arrival of both your and my ancestors instead of 1721. If this date was received from some written record and then handed down to us it is quite possible that a 7, if carelessly made, might be taken for a 1, especially a German or Old English style of a 7. If this mistake has been made by someone in the past, it would indicate that the original source of your traditional date is probably the same source from which our family got its information, and that the mistake has been carried forward in both family traditions.”

3. Letter of Gov. John S. Fisher dated July 16, 1930, as follows:

“Jacob Fisher and family came to the Perkiomen Valley near Philadelphia about 1720 or 21 from Freinsheim, the Palatinate, where the family records are still preserved in the ancient Reformed Church.”

The Beginning of a Glorious Opportunity in a New Country

SOON after William Penn founded Philadelphia, European emigrants pushed inland to the Perkiomen Creek, entered into its valley and settled its inviting lands. Others followed and ventured farther into the wilderness, establishing themselves upon Shippack Creek and farther north on the two Swamp creeks, Old and New Goshenhoppen, and points farther east, north and west. Thus, in a comparatively short time, the territory drained by Perkiomen Creek and its tributaries was peopled by civilized whites. The colonists showed remarkable physical and moral courage in surmounting the hazards of this virgin wilderness and made homes for themselves and their families.

They were fortunate in having come into the domain of the Penns. William Penn had recently died and had been succeeded by his son, Thomas, and there is every reason to believe that the son continued the same liberal policy toward the colonies that had so nobly characterized his father.

Like all new arrivals in this country, Jacob Fisher and his family were immediately faced with the problem of selecting a community in which to start a new life. In this they exercised splendid judgment and found their haven in the Perkiomen region among the "Red Hills" of Montgomery County, a location which was adaptable to their needs. Inclined as they were to rural rather than urban life, they were seeking fertile soil and a proper climate for the agricultural pursuits to which they had been accustomed in their native land.

More important, Jacob Fisher and his family were able to adjust themselves and become masters of their lives in this new and strange land, thousands of miles away from familiar surroundings, from old friends and relatives who could not be near to lend a helping hand in their struggle to carve out a home in this wilderness. Jacob was around fifty years old when he arrived in America. It is to his credit that, in spite of middle age and the difficulties of learning new languages in a foreign land, he rapidly acquired land and became a prosperous farmer of that day, as well as a respected leader in his church and his community, both of which he helped build. The journey from Germany, via Holland or England, to the new world, was long and expensive, often requiring a year or two. The majority of immigrants had to work for their American masters for years to pay back the cost of their passage. It is logical to assume that after such a journey, Jacob could not have arrived in America with much left in money or worldly possessions. That he was able to carve a niche for himself and his family, in so short a time before his death, is truly remarkable.

The colonists were far too busy with the pressing needs of day-to-day living to write in detail regarding their activities for posterity. We are more fortunate than most in this respect, and the following is quoted from Jacob Fischer, the Immigrant, a book compiled for and presented to our cousin, Governor John S. Fisher.

“One of the first settlers of New Goshenhoppen was Jacob Fischer, whose descendants may now be found in many parts of the United States and Canada. He came from Freinsheim, an ancient town in the Palatinate, located on the plain West of the river Rhine.

“When Rev. John Henry Goetschy, in 1731, if not earlier, opened the church book of the Reformed congregation of New Goshenhoppen (‘New Coschenhoppen’) he entered in the list of heads of families the names of Jacob Fisher and Herman Fisher, respectively father and son. His wife’s name was Sophia Elizabeth. Jacob Fisher and wife were here in 1726 and perhaps several years before.

“As was the custom of the immigrants, Jacob acquired land. He established a home in what is now Upper Hanover township. Under a warrant dated February 5, 1733, there was surveyed, February 14, 1734, to Jacob Fisher a tract of 300 acres of land, situated in New Goshenhoppen (written Cowissioppin), in Philadelphia County. By deed poll, January 17, 1737, he transferred to his son, Herman Fisher, the moiety of this tract, say 150½ acres and allowances, which was bounded by lands of Michael Ziegler, Leonard Ox, Burgert Hapman, George Walgar and Jacob Fisher. It was subject to a yearly quit-rent of a halfpenny sterling per acre, or the value thereof in coin current.

“Jacob Fisher died on the eighth of March, 1748. His wife died before this date. An interesting controversy arose as to the distribution of his estate. He made a will dated April 18, 1747, in which he bequeathed to his grandson, John Jacob Fisher, the eldest son of his son Herman, fifteen (pounds) Pennsylvania money; to his granddaughter, Sophia Dotterer, ten (pounds) ; to his granddaughter, Sophia Wiand, twenty-five (pounds) and some household articles; and to his son-in-law, Wendel Wiand, the rest of the estate.

“David Shultze, the stand-by of the country people in legal matters in those days, made a lengthy statement to the court at Philadelphia, in which he took grounds against the unfair provisions of the will, and urged that it be set aside, although he had himself drawn the will. From this interesting document we learn that Herman Fisher was the only living son; that Anna Maria, wife of Michael Dotterer, was the oldest daughter; that Anna Margareth, wife of Wendel Wiand, was the youngest daughter, and that these three were the only children living . . .”

It is interesting to note that The Perkiomen Region, from which we obtained much of our information about Jacob and his children, was edited in 1894 by a Henry S. Dotterer. Jacob's older daughter, Anna Maria, who died January 21, 1781, married Michael Dotterer. Mention is made of the following children: Anna Sophia Dotterer, born March 5, 1726; Maria Margaretha Dotterer, born March 25, 1733; Jacob Dotterer, born July 4, 1737. It is quite possible that this Editor Dotterer is a descendant through Jacob, which might explain why the Fishers were written about so fully in the papers edited by him.

Jacob Fisher's younger daughter, Johanne Margarethe, born August 28, 1712, married Wendel Wiand, born at Freinsheim July 14, 1709. David Schultze recorded that Wendel Wiand made a will a few years before his death, and at that time he owned a tract of 350 acres of land on Second Creek, in North Carolina, and two of his sons were “in Carolina.” We know of three sons, Wendel, Jr., Yost, and Jacob born July 4, 1737, and one daughter, Sophia, born June 20, 1736.

From the second volume of David Schultze's diaries, under date of 1768, we quote:

“On October 9 Wendel Wiand arrived happily in Philadelphia from Germany. His trip had lasted 46 weeks after he left Philadelphia. It took 8 weeks from Philadelphia to London and 8 weeks from England to Philadelphia.” [The author’s note: “Wiand (Weand) was a neighbor of Schultze’s in Goshenhoppen. A native of Freinsheim in the Palatinate, Wendel probably made the arduous journey to visit in that vicinity. He was twenty years old when he first came to Pennsylvania on the ship Mortonhouse in 1729. His return voyage in 1768 was completed on the ship Minerva, Thomas Arnott, Master.”]

Schultze also recorded that Yost Wyant and Jacob Goho returned from Carolina on January 23, 1782. They were gone twelve weeks and four days.

All the references in the David Schultze’s diaries, The Perkiomen Region and History of the New Goshenhoppen Reformed Church indicate that Jacob Fisher and his family were industrious colonists whose lives revolved around their homes and their church. We can well be proud of our illustrious ancestors who became such good citizens of their adopted country.

Herman, Son of Jacob Fisher

THE BEST recorded of the early Fisher ancestors in Pennsylvania is Herman, son of Jacob. Having been born in Germany in 1704 and being in his early twenties when he immigrated with his father to this country, Herman quickly established himself as a man of substance in his new land and head of a family in his own right. The following is quoted from The Perkiomen Region, Past and Present, edited by Henry S. Dotterer:

“Among the prominent farmers of New Goshenhoppen in the Colonial era was Herman Fisher. He was the son of Jacob and Sophia Elizabeth Fisher, who came from Freinsheim in the Palatinate. Herman probably had reached manhood when he reached these shores, about the year 1726. In 1731 he was a member of Pastor Goetschy’s Reformed church at New Goshenhoppen. He was married and the head of a family. His wife’s name was Margaret. His name is on the list of taxables of Hanover township for the year 1734. On the nineteenth of May, 1739, he was naturalized by act of Assembly.

“January 17, 1737, his father conveyed to Herman Fisher one hundred and fifty and a half acres, with the customary allowance of six acres, per hundred for roads. The Proprietaries gave him a deed of confirmation for this tract on the eighth of March, 1737, in which it is described as ‘a certain Tract of Land situate in New Cowissioppen.’ It was subject to a yearly quit-rent of halfpenny sterling per acre, or the value thereof in coin current.

“January 25, 1738, the Proprietaries patented to him a tract of 103 acres and 114 perches, with allowances for roads, also located in New Cowissioppen, and subject to a quit-rent of ½ d. sterling per acre.

“June 9, 1756, he purchased of Christopher Ziegler and Deborah, his wife, of Upper Hanover township, 3 acres, 136 perches.

“The period covered by Herman Fisher’s active life was about thirty years, from 1730 until his death in 1760. His name is frequently mentioned in the records of that time. In the Germantown newspaper of October 16, 1755, he inserted a notice which shows one of the incidents in the farmer's life of those days: Herman Fisher in Upper-hanover Taunship macht bekant, dass sich ein geringes Kalb seither der vergangenen Faalfar zu seinem Vieh gehalten, es ist schwartz und hat einenweissen Kopff. Wer es als sein Eigenthum beweisen kan, soll es abholen gegen bezahlung billiger Unkosten. This has been translated as follows:

“ ‘Herman Fisher in Upper-hanover Township makes it known that a small calf has been with his cattle since last fall; it is black and has a white head. Anyone who can establish ownership to the same should fetch it upon payment of a small cost of upkeep.’

“He was remarkably successful in his calling, accumulating a considerable fortune. He did not live to a great age; was about fifty-five when he died.

“Being seriously ill, he sent for David Schultze to put in writing his wishes as to the disposition of his estate. His will is dated the eighteenth of July, 1760, and it was probated on the thirtieth of the ensuing September. He signed it in very neat German handwriting, Hermann Fischer. Its execution was witnessed by Wendel Wiand, his brother-in-law, Christopher Ziegler and David Schultze. He sealed it with red wax, upon which he placed his own seal, which was of somewhat oval shape, upright, and bearing the initials H. F., under which was a fish, and under that two crossed quill-pens standing on their points.”

The will of Herman Fisher, which was quoted in full by Mr. Dotterer, is a very lengthy document notable for the ample and detailed provisions made for the support of his wife, as shown by the following sentences drawn from that detailed document:

“ . . . it is my Will that my beloved Wife Margareth shall have full Privilege and Liberty to live in ye House where we now live as in the Upper Stove Room as long as she shall happen to live, but in Case she should happen to live to an old Age, so that it might be inconvenient for her to live up Stairs, then shall she also have Liberty to live in the lower Stove Room, . . . I do also give and bequeath to her my sd Wife Margareth the sum of Sixty Pounds Lawful Money of Pennsylvia. . . . I further give and bequeath to her My Bed and bedstead with the Curtain and . . . and my Chest and one of my Cows, . . . And further shall he or his heirs Exors Administrators or Successors yearly give to my said beloved Wife Margareth, . . . Eight bushels of Wheat, Seven Bushels of Rye, and

The old Fisher Homestead in Pennsylvania

Seventy Pounds weight of Burg (Pork) and Thirty Pounds Beef and Twenty Pounds Flax and Twenty Pounds of Toe and Six Pounds of Wool and Two Barrels of Cyder; he shall also keep for her one Cow in his fodder in Summer and (Winter) time as Good as his own, . . . and shall give her every fifth gallon of Distilled Liquor and shall Carry her Corn to the Mill and the Meal home again for her Use, and shall cut and Carry fire Wood for her as much as she may have Necessary fit for her Use during her Life Time, . . . She shall also have Liberty at any Time to Take one of my said Son's Horses for her use to Travel to any of my Children when she may have it necessary, . . ."

Margareth Fisher survived her husband Herman by a good many years. David Schultze records her death in January, 1782, by writing, "Old Herman Fisher's widow, Margareth, died on the 9th and was burried on the 11th—she is 74 years, 1 month old." He also made notations on Feb. 9 that he appraised her estate, on the 14th he copied off her inventory and will, and on the 18th he and his wife went to Philadelphia to prove widow Fisher's will, the vendue requested by her taking place on the 22nd. Unlike her late husband, the widow of Herman disposed of her worldly estate in rather short order, dividing it equally among her five sons and six daughters, declaring only that "this my will all may be peaceably performed."

Herman had an advantage over his father in that he arrived in this new land while still a young man. He was a remarkably successful farmer and accumulated a considerable fortune. The old Fisher homestead, located two miles west of East Greenville, is still pointed out as one of the most beautiful in that part of the state. It was here that Herman and his beloved wife Margareth lived and raised their eleven children. Part of the original structure built by Herman still remains, indicative of the thoroughness with which the immigrant Fishers built. As was so often the case with the solid farmers who became known as "Pennsylvania Dutch," they constructed commodious barns which were frequently more imposing than their dwellings.

Their eldest son, Jacob, came to North Carolina, and we learn more about him later. Their eldest daughter, Anna Maria, married a Draxel. The second daughter, Anna Catherine, was born April 10, 1731; she died May 8, 1812. She was married to Roland Young.

Maria Barbara was baptized July 15, 1733; she married Melchior Heebner. John was born February 6, 1735, and died in 1787. He married Catherine Gabel on October 9, 1759, and they had a son, John Fisher, Jr. Anna Margaretha was born on February 23, 1737, married Ludwig Bender on January 8, 1760, and died on April 13, 1808. Herman's third son, George, is our common ancestor, as is his son, George Fisher, Jr., who as a lad was brought to North Carolina by his Uncle Jacob. Sophia was confirmed in 1761 and married Peter Everhard. Herman moved to Maryland. Wendel moved to Berks County, Pennsylvania, and married Juliana Schneider on May 26, 1767. Christiana was baptized on February 12, 1749, married John Segler on June 28, 1768, and moved to Shamoky, Pennsylvania.

Dr. Calvin M. DeLong, Pastor of the New Goshenhoppen Reformed Church, under date of July 31, 1930, had the following to say about Jacob Fisher and his son Herman:

“Jacob was the Governor's (John S. Fisher of Pennsylvania) great-great-great-great grandfather and was one of the founders of our church over two hundred years ago. His son, Herman, was very distinguished and a great power in our community in those early years. He was the ruling elder of the congregation as you see in the History which I am sending you. Both Jacob and Herman were original members of the church . . .”

MARRIAGES

1761, May 12, Georg Fisher and Anna Barbara Eberhard.

George Fisher's wife, Barbara Eberhard, was a daughter of Joseph Eberhard who came to America in 1727, and took out a warrant for the "Great Swamp Reformed Church." Governor John S. Fisher has a copy of this warrant. Mr. A. W. Fisher has an Eberhard coat of arms, a copy of one used in Philadelphia in signing a 1736 power of attorney. As Barbara Eberhard was the mother of our common ancestor, George Fisher, Jr., we are entitled to use this coat of arms. Her letter to her son in North Carolina appears as item 2 in the Proofs of Line of the Fisher Ancestry in the beginning of this book.

The records indicate that George Fisher followed in the footsteps of his father Herman and Grandfather Jacob in his devotion to his church and his responsibilities to his family and community.

Other Fisher Kin of Pennsylvania

BEFORE leaving our Pennsylvania kin, to concentrate on those of North Carolina, we wish to mention our illustrious ancestor, Dr. Samuel Reed Fisher, because it was through his letters to his first cousin, Solomon Fisher, that we were able to trace our lineage back to Jacob Fisher, the immigrant. We have been told that Dr. Samuel Reed Fisher bore a striking resemblance to his North Carolina cousin, Solomon.

We are quoting below from the December, 1927, issue of the Reformed Church Messenger the biographical sketch of Dr. Fisher:

“Rev. Samuel Reed Fisher, D.D., was born at Norristown, Pa., June 2, 1810. Dr. Fisher graduated from Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Pa., in 1834. Theological Seminary, York, Pa., 1836. Pastor at Emmitsburg, Md., 1836-1839. Superintendent of the Reformed Church Publication Interests 1840-1881. Editor of The Messenger 1840-1875. Synodical Editor 1875-1881. Stated Clerk of the Synod of the U. S., 1840-1881. Dr. Fisher became ill while attending the sessions of the General Synod, Tiffin, Ohio, and died in that city, June 5, 1881.”

Dr. Fisher's son, Rev. Charles Gutzlaff Fisher, carried on the great work begun by his father; and we are quoting below his biographical sketch taken from the same issue of The Messenger.

“Rev. Charles G. Fisher, D.D., was born at Emmitsburg, Md., December 28, 1837. Graduated Franklin and Marshall College 1858. Principal of the Academies at Mifflinburg, Pa., and Landisburg, Pa. Taught in the “Hill” School, Pottstown, Pa. Graduated from the Seminary, Mercersburg, Pa., 1866. Pastor Boehm's Charge, Blue Bell, Pa. (the church which his father attended when a boy, and in which he was also confirmed) and Winchester, Va. In 1880 he removed to Philadelphia to assist his father, Rev. Dr. Samuel R. Fisher, in the management and publication of The Messenger. After the death of his father, in 1881, he was elected Secretary and Treasurer of the Reformed Church Publication Board and in 1887 became the lessee of the publication interests and

Rev. Samuel Reed Fisher, D.D.

Editor from 1887 until his death in 1896. While gathered with his family around the dining table, February 25, 1896, he was fatally stricken and died the same day."

Another illustrious Pennsylvania cousin, to whom we are more indebted than any other individual in establishing the relationship of the North Carolina Fishers with their ancestors in Pennsylvania, is John S. Fisher, Governor of Pennsylvania 1926-30. He and Mr. Jim Fisher became good friends, visiting each other and corresponding frequently until the Governor's untimely death in 1940.

The following was taken from the Norristown Times Herald of November 20, 1926, and explains how the book Jacob Fisher, the Immigrant was written and presented to Governor Fisher.

"Montgomery County branches on the family tree of Governor-elect John S. Fisher were traced at the Huguenot banquet in Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia, last night, by Dr. W. H. Reed, of Norristown, treasurer of the Montgomery County Historical Society, who by intermarriage of ancestors is a relative of the Governor-elect.

"Mr. Reed traced the Fisher genealogy back to the arrival in America of the Montgomery County Fisher family, coming from the Palatinate in 1726.

"He gave these names and dates of Fisher forefathers:

"1, Jacob Fisher, d. 1748; 2, Herman Fisher, d. 1760; 3, George Fisher, bapt. 1739; 4, Wendell Fisher, b. 1782; 5, Dr. Samuel Reed Fisher, b. 1810.

"Wendell Fisher was a brother of the Governor-elect's grandfather, he said.

"In presenting Mr. Fisher with a book concerning a monument dedication in this county, this year, Dr. Reed said:

" 'My great-grandfather was a soldier of the Revolution. He was an officer in the Philadelphia County Militia, served faithfully the American cause throughout the whole war, and was a conspicuous figure of his locality. . . . '

"Among the children of Lieutenant Colonel Jacob Reed was a daughter named Eve, who married Wendell Fisher, and is of the 'freundschaft' of our Governor-elect John S. Fisher. She was the mother of Rev. Samuel Reed Fisher, D.D., who in his time was an eminent divine of the Reformed Church of America, and editor and publisher of The Reformed Church Messenger. . . . "

Clarifying the Term “Pennsylvania Dutch”

I DEEM it wise to set this term straight. Cornelius Weygandt, author of the splendid volume, The Red Hills, has handled this so well that I am quoting him at length, as follows:

“I have no quarrel with the phrase ‘Country Dutch’ in itself, but only with its use in a sense that will narrow all to whom it is applied to uniformity. Nor have I any quarrel with the phrase ‘Pennsylvania Dutch.’ It is ‘Dutch’ that we call ourselves, or ‘Deitsch,’ according to the language that we use, and it is ‘Dutch’ that our neighbors and all our countrymen call us. It is pedantry, and worse than pedantry, to insist on ‘Pennsylvania German.’ The rank and file of us do not so insist. We are as glad to be ‘Dutch’ as New Englanders are to be ‘Yankee.’

“We are, of course, pretty generally of middle-class origin, as are most Americans whose forbears left Europe in Colonial times. There were peasants among the first comers, and some of us were held to the condition of farm laborers until a generation ago. There were upper-class folk among the German settlers, and some families continued to send their sons back to the old country to marry until as late as the early nineteenth century. We have, like other Americans, our share of crests and coats of arms.

“There was wealth among us almost from the earliest immigration, before 1700. Homes more than comfortable were plenty even before the Revolution. In the prosperous days that followed quickly on that struggle’s end, not a few estates that can rightly be called manorial were laid out by German Americans in the triangle of southeastern Pennsylvania whose three corners are Philadelphia and Easton and York.

“There was learning among us from the first. Pastorius was only one of the scholars among those who laid the foundations of Pennsylvania Dutchland with the settlement of Germantown in 1683. There were many artisans of high skill too among the early immigrants: printers, potters, turners, gunsmiths, weavers, wine-makers, and a score of others. No output of America's eighteenth century press compares to the Martyr Book of Ephrata, of 1748-49. David Rittenhouse, super-artisan and scientist in one, is but the first in a long line of wideners of horizons. Leidy is of the line, and not its least.

"There were many of the makers of America among the early emigrants from Germany, Conrad Weiser first among them. No other man of the mid-eighteenth century was so effective a mediator between whites and Indians as he, and so potent to reduce the danger of raids. From his day to General Pershing's, we have contributed our share of leaders to America.

"Good music flourished first in America among the Germans of Pennsylvania. Even to this hour, it has its place as one of the recognized phases of social entertainment. The country band is to be found everywhere in our 'Dutch' countries; singing societies prosper; and orchestras, often surprisingly large, and playing the best music, are not uncommon in country towns. Moravian churches are famous for their Bach, and Haydn, and Mozart, and the Lutheran and Reformed Churches, in many instances, do not, in this respect, fall far short of the Moravian.

"No other phase of our culture reveals more clearly the many sorts and conditions of us, social, intellectual, and spiritual, than our churches. We range all the way from the ritualistic Lutherans, through the German Reformed and Moravians, to the Methodist-like Evangelicals, and such plain and Quaker-like sects as Schwenkfelders and Dunkards, Mennonites and Amish.

"They will tell you that the Pennsylvania Dutch are what they are because of a hundred years and more of isolation. They will tell you that we have been cut off alike from the Rhine Valley and the Switzerland from which we came, and from the English-speaking districts about us. Neither of these statements is true of a majority of us, though the one may be true of a remote countryside and the other of a sect. From the middle years of the eighteenth century, when the first great waves of emigration from Germany had begun to subside, we have never ceased to be recruited by arrivals from Germany.

"Always in the home countries of Pennsylvania there were Americans of Scotch-Irish and Welsh and English stock side by side with those of German stock. Inter-marriage and all other social contacts tended to keep us a part of America. Most of us were bilingual, and English books found place side by side on our shelves with books in Latin and German brought from the old country and with books in German printed by Saur and Billmeyer in Germantown and by the Brethren in Ephrata.”

All this sums up to different nationalities settling in a common community to begin life over. This proved to be in reality a great melting pot of dialects as well as customs; and it should be noted that they were not interested so much in aristocratic prominence and did not aspire to be the Yankees of the Northeast; the favored group that landed on the Mayflower, nor the Cavaliers of Virginia. Rather, it was their desire to give a good account of the abilities with which they had been endowed, by the use of their heads, their hearts, and their hands. From this amalgamation were laid the foundations of one of the greatest nations on earth.

The Fishers of North Carolina

IN PENNSYLVANIA around 1750, the best of the land had been taken up by the Quakers and other English colonists. Some Scots had come after 1746. In the western part of the state were fierce and warlike Indians, jealous of their lands and hunting grounds. David Schultze's diaries contained many accounts of massacres and raids in the Perkiomen region where he lived as a neighbor of the Fishers, and of unsuccessful efforts to negotiate a peace with them.

By reason of this situation a great German trek southward began around 1750. Through Maryland, the Valley of Virginia and into the Piedmont section of the Carolinas came the migration. All along the route migrants dropped off and settled, until finally some arrived in Rowan County, which at that time embraced some thirty counties in Western North Carolina and reached to the Mississippi River.

While different nationalities were represented, the Scotch-Irish and "Pennsylvania Dutch" (German) predominated. This is especially true when relating to Rowan, Cabarrus, Guilford and Davidson counties. To this day there can be found here traces of distinct characteristics of these two fine races of people. It is said that in those early years here in Rowan County, particularly in the southern and eastern sections, had you found yourself among these people, you would have thought you were in Montgomery, Berks or Lancaster County, Pennsylvania; for so thoroughly were they "Pennsylvania Dutch." What can be said of these can be similarly said of the Scotch-Irish. The latter settled in the western part of the county and retained the customs and characteristics of the people from whence and from whom they came.

Along with this migration came another great people, the Moravians. They settled the "Wachovia Tract," in what is now Forsyth County, but originally Rowan.

All these, with their neighbors, set about in a wilderness to help establish a commonwealth to take its place among the honored states of this great republic. Sons and daughters of worthy sires have carried on to a satisfactory degree.

It is not the purpose of the writers to claim any superiority for, or in any way to indicate that the Fishers contributed any more than their neighbors, but to state that they have been found in the forefront of practically every worthwhile activity of the state, and have proven themselves loyal to her interests.

Among that group of early pioneers to this section came one Jacob Fisher, sharing with them the hardships and romances incident to that day. We do not know the exact date of his coming. One report says that a Jacob Fisher came with the Moravian migration about 1758 and settled near the Yadkin River, but this is doubtful in view of all the information we have that his father Herman and his grandfather Jacob were charter members of the Reformed Church in New Goshenhoppen and that he was later the Chairman of the Building Committee of Lowerstone Church, also Reformed.

A Jacob Fisher appears on an old "List of Taxable Persons of Rowan County" for the year 1768. The recorded marriages in Rowan County shows a Jacob Fisher married Christian Crossman the same year, September 8, 1768. A Jacob Fisher married Jane Sloane on February 25, 1793.

We do know that his first cousins, the Wiands, whose father owned 350 acres of land at Second Creek, made a visit to Carolina and arrived back in Pennsylvania on January 23, 1782. We also know that the records show that on October 10, 1783, Jacob Fisher secured a land grant from the state of North Carolina for 456 acres, at the rate of fifty shillings for every one hundred acres, just south of what is now known as Lowerstone Church, which was then called Grace. A year later in 1784 he sold 175 acres of this land to his son, John Fisher, Sr., and this same tract was deeded in 1804 by the heirs of John Fisher, Sr. to John Fisher, Jr. In 1801 Jacob Fisher made a deed to his son Herman for the western part of this tract, consisting of 282 acres. This tract, together with 41 acres obtained from William Bost, was sold by Joseph Fisher in 1854 and, inasmuch as Herman Fisher had died intestate, it is evident from this transaction that Joseph was a son of Herman Fisher, since the records show that this property was never deeded to him but passed by inheritance. To this date the corners of this old grant to Jacob Fisher remain the same, and it still remains the property of the Barnhardt family who originally purchased it from Joseph, grandson of Jacob Fisher.

Jacob Fisher was one of the organizers and builders of the present Lowerstone Church. He was named the Chairman of the Building Committee and did a masterful job which stands as a monument to his memory.

To indicate the calibre and standing of Jacob Fisher, I quote from the history gathered from that church: "For this building a committee was elected who were members of the congregation—namely, Sir George Henry Berger and John Sifferd. They considered the burden too great and they therefore declined and it was not undertaken. Finally the consistory undertook the work—namely, Elders Jacob Fisher and John Casper and the Deacons Franz Lingle and John Fisher, who with the aid of the congregation were their own building masters until the church was completed.

"Col. George Henry Berger and Jacob Fisher were the Elders at the time of the beginning of the building of the church. Col. Berger was of noble birth and wealthy for that day. He took some exceptions to the contents of a manuscript document placed by the pastor among the contents of the cornerstone. Berger alleged too much credit and prominence were given Fisher. On account of this supposed slight, Berger refused to aid in the erection of the walls, but the work went on under the stimulating presence and activity of Fisher. Berger, seeing that he was about to have no part or lot in the good and great work, proposed that if Fisher would relinquish it, he would show them what he would do. As the money of Berger was needed, Fisher assented to the proposition. Now, however, to the amazement of every one, Berger demanded as the condition of his liberality that the walls so far built should be torn down; that the offensive document be removed from the cornerstone. This was more than those sturdy backwoodsmen would do to relieve any man's wounded pride, or to secure his money, and the conditions were peremptorily refused. But all this delayed the work, and the church was not completed until sixteen years from the time the cornerstone was laid."

Jacob Fisher died in 1804, and it is quite fitting that he lies peacefully a short distance of the northeast corner of the church, marked by a simple tombstone.

The fascinating history of the building of Lowerstone Church is quoted below from the book Rhinelanders on the Yadkin by Carl Hammer, Jr., M.A., Ph.D.:

“Among the German Reformed churches in this section of North Carolina, the oldest are Leonard’s (or Pilgrim) and Beck’s churches, in Davidson County, and Lowerstone in southeastern Rowan. The latter may be styled the ancestor of all the Reformed churches in the surrounding country west of the Yadkin. Since shortly after 1750 the congregation had worshipped in the “Old Hickory Church,” also used by the Lutherans, and then in a second log building. Then in 1795 a momentous change occurred, concerning which the following fondly cherished tradition remains:

“The Lutherans, having completed their massive stone church (Organ) the year before, could not refrain from occasional jibes at their Reformed neighbors who still gathered in the weather-beaten log meeting-house. Thus a pleasant relationship of long standing became strained to the point of an ever-growing hostility. Just then a happy thought came to some of the leaders of the Reformed congregation: they could use this antagonism to get a new church of their own. Calling a meeting of the members, they said ‘Let’s build a stone house of worship exactly large enough to hold the Lutheran church.’ Great enthusiasm greeted this proposal, and the story goes that it was carried out to the letter—that if it were possible to pick up one stone church and set it into another, Organ would fit inside its rival edifice like a hand in a glove.

“Land for a new church (a tract of sixteen acres) had already been bought as early as 1774 from Lorentz Lingle, as shown by the deed conveying it to Andrew Holshouser and John Lippard for ‘the use of the Calvin Congregation.’ The cornerstone was laid in 1795, during the pastorate of the Rev. Andrew Lorentz. Leaders in erecting the new structure were the elders, Col. George Henry Berger and Jacob Fisher. While the building was mainly complete by 1800, certain details were not finished until 1811. Lorentz, who had been succeeded by George Boger, returned to preach the dedicatory sermon in that year. What had originally been called Grace Church (German: Gnadenkirche), was thenceforth known as Lowerstone. Its name therefore not only indicates its building material, but also distinguishes it geographically from the nearby stone church of the Lutherans.

“Lowerstone measures 40x50 feet, with walls 27 feet high, surmounted by gables with an upward reach of twelve feet. Those walls are of massive stone and range from 32 inches at the ground to 21 inches at the gallery, which extends around three sides. By reason of its height and the windows opening from the galleries, Lowerstotne, like Organ, has externally the appearance of a two-story structure. Smooth stones formed the first flooring, which remained until 1871. The original pulpit was in the so-called 'goblet design,' so familiar in the churches of Germany; it had the usual overhead sounding-board as well. Over the outer doors on three sides are slate-like stones bearing German inscriptions. Another one, to the right of the south door, has a dial-face chiseled on it, with the words: 'Im Yahre Christi 1795' ('In the year of Christ, 1795'). The clock-hands point to the hour 9:30, indicating perhaps the extent of the walls at that time on a certain day in the year mentioned.

"In 1782 Jacob Fisher gave the congregation a large blank ledger for records. This church-book is excellently preserved, and a large part of it contains beautiful German handwriting. The first name recorded therein is Anna Maria Maurer (Mowery), daughter of Frederick Maurer. During more than forty years these records were kept in German, first by Rev. Samuel Suther himself; then they began to appear in English, which in the 1820's was slowly crowding out the old vernacular."

George Fisher, Jr.

JACOB FISHER, in 1774, went back to his native state to attend a family reunion at the old homestead in Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, near Pennsburg. On his return to his new home in Carolina, he brought with him his nephew, George, the son of his younger brother George. This important information is recorded in a published diary of Mr. Schultze under date of November 30, 1774: "George and Jacob Fisher set out for Carolina on the 30th—in the rain." The author's footnote:

"(The arrival in Goshenhoppen of D. and M. Fisher from Maryland on October 21, plus Jacob Fisher's appearance from Carolina one month later, led at least one family historian to assert that the occasion was a family reunion. This may well have been the case, but the family transacted some very serious business. As Schultze notes, when Jacob returned to Carolina after visiting for a week, he was accompanied by George Fisher. George, Jacob's nephew, was only six years old at the time and he never returned to Pennsylvania. It is currently impossible to tell why the family was broken up in this manner but six year old George was reared in Jacob's home, established himself on a plantation in Rowan County, North Carolina and raised a family of nine children.)"

This George Fisher is the great-grandfather of a host of us, the greater number of whom reside in Rowan and Cabarrus Counties. He accumulated considerable wealth and became a large landowner, as is indicated in his will. His first tract of land was near his Uncle Jacob in Cabarrus County near the Rowan County line, where he built a home and became the father of a large, and in many ways, a remarkable family. His son Solomon inherited the home place which is now owned by Dr. Thomas G. Thurston, of Salisbury.

Beside carrying on his farm activities, he was also a noted wagon builder. This is naturally an indication of his business acumen, as there was quite a demand for wagons in carrying on the transportation of that day. Wagon trains were operated between Salisbury, the principal town of this section, and such points as Fayetteville, Edenton, Cheraw and Charleston. Many interesting stories have been handed down, having their origin in that important period of our state. In that day it required real men to carry on, and it is interesting to us to know that our ancestor, George Fisher, Jr., played such an important part.

The State Bank of North Carolina was established in Salisbury in 1811. A George Fisher was one of the first directors. Dr. Hilbert A. Fisher, great-great-grandson of George Fisher prepared a remarkably accurate family tree in 1931 of the descendants of George Fisher. Among these can be found practically every profession. Farming has largely predominated, but other fields are well represented, especially the educational, religious and industrial.

Prominent in the educational field, we have the Lingle brothers, Dr. Walter and Dr. Tom, great-grandsons of our southern immigrant, George Fisher. Dr. Walter L. Lingle was President (1929-1941) of Davidson College, one of the leading colleges not only of North Carolina but of the United States. Dr. Tom Lingle was head of the History Department of the same institution. He was not only a leading educator, but is distinguished for having traveled abroad possibly more extensively than any other individual in North Carolina. Other prominent leaders in education are Dr. Hilbert A. Fisher and his uncles, Rev. J. H. C. and Prof. C. L. T. Fisher. Dr. Hilbert Fisher was head of the Department of Mathematics of State College. Rev. J. H. C. Fisher was for many years president of Mont Amoena Seminary, Mount Pleasant, N. C., while his brother, Prof. C. L. T. Fisher, was vice-president of Elizabeth College, Charlotte, N. C.

Fishers are numerous represented in the religious field; and it is not claiming too much to state that many leaders have been and are now found in this important activity. As a proof of this statement, though somewhat exceptional, there are five ministers from one family, that of L. V. Fisher, great-great-grandson of our distinguished ancestor. Their names are Herman, Ray, Roscoe, Carl and Earle Fisher.

Many of our number are taking part in the industrial growth of the state. Manufacturing, merchandising and banking seem to be the more attractive for them. It is interesting to know that A. W. Fisher, great-grandson of George Fisher, is a vice-president of Cannon Mills Company, the largest manufacturers of household textiles in the world.

Few of our number have been interested in public life, and these have been of a local nature. George Fisher was one of the Eastern Rowan men who served in the General Assembly from Rowan, as a member of the House of Commons 1798-1799-1801, and as a member of the State Senate in 1803. This does not mean that there has been a lack of public interest, but, rather, quiet home life has had the greater appeal. In matters of the state they have stood side by side with their neighbors, defending what they thought to be right.

It is regrettable to note that in the Civil War, cousin fought against cousin. Much suffering was endured on account of that conflict. As a proof of this, I quote from a brief history of the company to which George's grandson, John V. Fisher, belonged from its beginning, Company H, 8th N. C. Regiment: "Was in active service three years and eight months. Over 1,300 enlisted and at the end there were only 150 present. They were under fire 200 times." I am glad to state that our fathers and sons were no less enthusiastic in their response to the call of our united country in World Wars I and II and the recent Korean conflict. Although there can be found nowhere a more loyal support of the perpetuation of our country than among our own people, it is our belief that we are better adapted to the affairs of peace than those of war.

Thus the trail of the Fishers leads from the walled city of Freinsheim in the Palatinate to the Perkiomen Valley of Pennsylvania to the open and rolling hills of the Yadkin Valley of North Carolina; from the ancient and venerable Reformed Church in their German homeland to the building of the New Goshenhoppen Church in Upper Hanover township to the stone meeting house of Lowerstone. It is a story of a search for freedom and opportunity, climaxed in the development of Piedmont North Carolina from a forest land into the great industrial section it now is.

While our accomplishments have been rather modest, we believe we are justified in the faith we have in our younger generation in bringing greater honor to the name we possess.

PART TWO

The Genealogy

Family tree of the first five generations beginning with Jacob Fisher, the Immigrant

KEY TO THE RECORD

TO ARRANGE a family record so it can be understood by all readers is quite a problem. It is necessary that some plan or method be used in order to avoid chaos. The relationship must be understood. The course of the genealogical line must be clear. The following plan has been adopted:

Figures are used to designate the order of the generations. The first known common ancestor is Jacob Fisher, the immigrant, who is shown as Generation (1). His son Herman is Generation (2). One of Herman's sons is George, Generation (3). One of George's sons is George, Jr., Generation (4), who was brought to North Carolina by his Uncle Jacob, and who became the common ancestor of those dealt with in this book. These numbers denoting the generation from Jacob are attached to each individual except where groups of the same generation are given in one paragraph, in which case it is attached to only the first name in the paragraph.

The plan is, when the father or mother heads the paragraph, and his or her oldest son or daughter is brought down in the next paragraph, that these descendants are all listed before the next child is taken up, and the same thing is done again and again until all the descendants of those children are listed. This holds good throughout the whole record.

A few abbreviations are used. The small "b" is used for born, "m" for married, "d" for died, "s" for single and "div." for divorced.

A great deal of effort has been made to avoid any error in compiling this record, and we trust the fewest possible have been made. However, we extend our regrets for any and all errors that may appear.

I-6 MOSES LINGLE, b. Jan. 9, 1814, d. Jan. 13, 1887, studied under the noted Peter Stuart Ney, who was believed by many to have been Napoleon's great Marshal Ney, and graduated from Davidson College in 1845. He had hoped to be a minister, but like Moses of old he was a little slow of speech and decided to be a teacher. His first wife died early, leaving one son, James Lingle, who grew to manhood, but it is not known what became of him. Moses Lingle, after the death of his first wife, married Nancy Knox. They had no children.

In 1858 he was elected a deacon in Back Creek Presbyterian Church and in 1860 he was elected a ruling elder, which office he filled with great faithfulness until his death. For many years he was Superintendent of the Sunday School and was Clerk of the Session for twenty-six years. The historian of Back Creek Church says that he was "a ripe scholar and read intelligently six or seven different languages. He took great delight in reading the holy scriptures in their original Hebrew and Greek."

I-8 MARY LEE SLOAN, b. Feb. 25, 1890, went to China as a missionary under the Board of World Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. in 1920. After a year of language study in Nanking, she was assigned to Suchowfu as Secretary-Treasurer of the Station. After six years on the field and one year furlough, Miss Sloan was given charge of the Woman's Bible School, in addition to the office work. This work proved much more satisfying than the business end of the Mission Work, as necessary as that was. She received great joy in the work with the women and girls who came in from the country to study in the little Bible School. Some of them were very bright and learned quickly.

and were able to go back to their homes and teach others the Gospel stories and the hymns we all love.

During the Japanese occupation in China many thousands of refugees were cared for by the missionaries all over the country. In 1940 the tension between Japan and the U. S. grew, so that officials advised all those whose furloughs were due, and the mothers with children, to return to the homeland. Miss Sloan came back to the U. S., in December, 1940, and did not return to the field.

From 1941-1948 Miss Sloan served as Assistant Treasurer of the Defense Service Council of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. In 1949 she became Secretary to the Editor-in-Chief of the Board of Christian Education in Richmond where she continues to serve in the work of the Church.

Peter Alexander Fisher, son of John Fisher and grandson of the first George Fisher who came to North Carolina at the age of six, married Camilla Brown. Her brother, John D. A. Brown, married Cladora Fisher, Peter Alexander's sister. The children of these two couples were, therefore, double first cousins, which accounts for the abiding ties of kinship among many of their descendants.

Before his marriage Peter Alexander built a comfortable home on the Salisbury-Faith road four miles from Salisbury. Four sturdy boys were born to this couple. When the youngest (J. H. C.) was only a few months old, his father died of typhoid fever. The Civil War was just about to begin and, although times were difficult, the plucky mother held her family together.

II-7 M. GEORGE M. FISHER, b. Feb. 20, 1855, d. 1942, m. July 16, 1879, Margaret Mariah Peeler, b. July 16, 1859, d. Jan. 18, 1933. Children: II-8: Henry L. Junius, b. Oct. 2, 1881, d. May 14, 1901—A. Luther Vastine — Myron Charles Melanchthon — Hilbert Adam Henderson — Edgar Walton Eugene—Pearle Anna Camilla.

M. George M. Fisher was born February 20, 1855. Upon the death of his mother in 1872 he went to Mt. Pleasant, N. C., and worked for Squire H. C. McAllister. (Here began an enduring friendship between the McAllister and Fisher families.) He attended North Carolina College for two years. While there a schoolmate, C. A. Rose, who later became his pastor, entered his room, rubbed his head and said, "Fisher, why are you studying so hard?" The reply was, "I am trying to get enough sense in my head to attend to my own business."

At the age of twenty-four he returned to the father's homeplace, paid his brothers for their interests in the plantation, and on March 16, 1879, consummated a very fortunate marriage with the alert and energetic young lady, Margaret Peeler. His younger brothers, while in college, found this a pleasant and congenial home to return to.

Mr. Fisher was a successful farmer and served as President of the Rowan County Farmer's Union for several years; he was a successful business man—a granite contractor—the cities of Charlotte, Durham and New Bern used his curbing to pave their streets.

Mr. Fisher supported his church generously, not only with his means, but also with his time, being frequently a delegate to the convention of the local Lutheran Synod and then a lay representative to the convention of the United Synods.

Mr. and Mrs. Fisher's golden wedding anniversary was fittingly celebrated on March 16, 1929. Tributes were made by his life long friends, Mr. John E. Ramsey of Salisbury and Col. G. F. McAllister of Mt. Pleasant.

Mrs. Fisher lived 72 years. Mr. Fisher lived to be 87 and passed to his reward on Palm Sunday, 1942. They are buried in the family plot in the cemetery of Faith Lutheran Church.

of his own or of his wife (who was driving), he was killed in an automobile wreck at the intersection of Main and Fisher Streets in Salisbury.

His civic and church activities included Chairman of his school board, Sunday School Teacher and Superintendent, Treasurer of the Church Building Fund, Delegate to both the Convention of the North Carolina Synod and the Convention of the United Lutheran Church of America.

Quote from a newspaper article:

"Myron, who was 67, was no old man as we think of age in our time; yet he had lived fully. He was the type of man who found time to say a friendly 'Howdy' and let you know he meant it. He was the type who found time to do those menial tasks that so many laymen find no time for, like teaching a Sunday School Class, taking an active part in Brotherhood, taking off work three days to attend a Synod meeting.

"He was the type of man who once convinced that it's time to build a new church, devoted every spare moment to it . . . that rare type who would go to the bank and borrow money and pay interest to keep up his church building fund commitments.

"His home, his wife, his children, his work, his church were to him relationships that filled the cup of life."

On May 7, 1911, he married Miss Cora Belle Misenheimer, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Misenheimer. She was educated in the Mt. Amoena Seminary Schools. She was a dedicated wife, devoted to her husband and sons. Her three sons, all college graduates, bear testimony to her sense of the values of life.

That he was “one of Nature’s noblemen” can be truly said of Dr. Albert Houck. For more than fifty years he was active in his chosen profession, bringing health, joy, comfort and sunshine into the lives of those who were so fortunate as to come under his benign influence. A rare gentleman, typical of the finest and best traditions of the old South, his long and useful life was devoted to service to mankind. He was a good doctor. In the practice of medicine, his arrival at the home of a patient brought relief to every member of the family. His presence inspired even the desperately ill with new courage and hope, factors which often tipped the scales in favor of the patient.

Nature endowed Doctor Houck with a fine physique, a distinguished appearance and when advancing years made it difficult for him to get about, his carriage remained as upright as his character. His appearance was still commanding and distinguished. Always was he the perfect gentleman. No one could talk with him even for a few minutes without realizing he was in the presence of one of the Lord’s elect.

Albert Houck was born in Rowan County, December 15, 1855. He was educated in the county schools, at Catawba College—then at Newton, Davidson College, and was graduated in medicine from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Baltimore, in 1884. Post graduate courses were later taken at Bellevue Hospital, New York City. He did his first professional work in Ashe County, later moving to Caldwell. He settled at Lenoir in 1891 and spent most of his professional career there, except six years in Statesville and nine years as a member of the staff of the State Hospital at Morganton.

In addition to his professional services, Doctor Houck was a great asset to the civic, religious and educational life of the community. On his retirement he presented to the Caldwell County Library his medical library of more than 300 volumes, the accumulation of a lifetime.

Doctor Houck was a close observer of nature. He loved the country, the woods and the open sky. . . Flowers were his hobby in later years. . .

He collected poems and committed many of them to memory. He liked to collect pictures, especially historical and humorous. His taste for books ran in much the same channel — history, biography and humor. . . . He had stored in memory a vast amount of unusual and interesting knowledge, which made him an exceptionally good conversationalist.

In the passing of Doctor Albert Houck, a great man is gone from among us, but his memory will ever be green in the minds of those who knew him. A gallant soldier is gone from the field of battle. There is no medal which can be bestowed which could adequately portray the gratitude and appreciation of those he served so well, so long and so faithfully.

II-7 MARY ANGERONA HOUCK, b. 1858, d. 1948, m. Elijah Miller. Children: II-8: Hallie—Ethel—Albert M.—Mary—Lillian—Christine—Olanthe.

Angie Houck Miller married Elijah Miller in 1879. They made their home in Rowan County, three miles north of China Grove, N. C., in the community known as the Grace Lutheran Church. There they became a vital part of the community where they reared a family of six girls and one boy. The home place known as the Miller Home is a landmark in the community. Angie Miller was very active in her community life and more especially in Grace Lutheran Church, where she and her husband were lifelong members. She loved her Church with an ardent enthusiasm and increasing devotion seldom equalled in others. Soon her entire family grew to love the Church and that same devotion and loyalty still lives in her children and grandchildren, as is evidenced by the active part they continue to take in the church. Two of her daughters married ministers and three of her grandsons are ministers. She and her husband gave the land on which Grace Lutheran Church was built many years ago. When the present new church was built, she, her son Albert, and many of her grandchildren were liberal contributors toward the construction of the new church. Angie Houck Miller was a very progressive and forward looking woman. No sacrifice was too great for her to see that her children were scholastically trained for good citizenship. Today her children, her grandchildren, friends and loved ones over the years have realized that among them lived a noble woman who cherished the highest ideals of life. One who was never satisfied with the second best. For her, life was the greatest thing on earth and her contribution to her home, to her children, to her community, to her church and to her loved ones, there is only the highest praise. To paint the picture of this good woman and to know her philosophy of life we need but quote:

“To live as gently as I can
To be my best no matter where I am
To take what comes of good or ill
And cling to faith and honor still
To do my best and let that stand
The record of my brain and hand,
And then should failure come to me
Still work for victory.
To leave some simple mark behind
To keep my having lived in mind,
This I believe is all I need
For my philosophy and creed.”

For those of us who knew her in later life through marriage in the family learned to love her with increasing devotion. For that same gentle spirit mellowed by years of sacrificial devotions to all she held most dear, we reverently say:

“O rare, sweet soul, so early passed beyond,
What sights are to thy raptured vision given?
O strange deep mystery, sudden from our sight,
Thou's passed like a shadow, then for us the night.
But for thee, it was Day where suns unsetting shine.”

Indeed, a great and noble soul lived in Angie Houck Miller.

Jacob Rufus Fisher was born July 6, 1836, the son of Jacob Fisher and Tennie Miller Fisher, in Southeastern Rowan County.

On January 20, 1858 he was married to Laura Catherine Holshouser. To this union eight children were born—Camilla, Carson, John L., Dovie, Emma, Gordia, George and Daisy.

On July 4, 1862 he was conscripted into the Confederate Army, 57th Reg. Company A. He was wounded in the 1st and 2nd Battles of Fredericksburg, after which he received treatment for eight months at Camp Chase, Ohio.

He was a devout Christian and a life long member of the Reformed Church. Until 1897 he was a member of Lower Stone Church, then he moved to Crescent, where he lived the remainder of his life. He served his church in many official capacities and never lost his strong convictions and faith in the needs and purposes of his church.

He departed this life in 1924 at the age of eighty-eight years.

Laura Catherine Holshouser Fisher was born December 24, 1838, the daughter of John Holshouser and Pauline Cauble Holshouser of Rowan County.

Besides caring for two small children, she operated the farm unassisted for the two years while her husband served in the Army.

Her gentle Christian character greatly influenced her eight sons and daughters. She passed away at the age of eighty-three years, in 1921.

This she did in a remarkable manner. With courage, patience, and a strong faith in God, she conquered all obstacles and reared her children to be a credit to herself, to her church and to the communities where they have lived.

Mrs. Cline was a true friend, loving Mother, and consecrated Christian. Her children and grandchildren have inherited sterling qualities from this great and good Mother.

Martin L. Cline was educated at St. John's Academy and North Carolina College, at Mt. Pleasant. He was a farmer and always interested in the things that make for a better life. His chief interests were his home, his family and his church. He was a member of the Church Council of St. John's Lutheran Church at the time of his death and had held various offices in the church prior to that time.

Their son is a successful farmer, businessman, and churchman. A daughter has been a valued teacher in the public schools of North Carolina for many years. Another daughter married a Lutheran Minister and has labored faithfully with her husband in the upbuilding of God's Kingdom.

THE DESCENDANTS OF JOHN W.

Son of William Fisher

V-6 JOHN WASHINGTON FISHER, b. Aug. 8, 1831, d. Aug. 2, 1908, m. July 25, 1855, Martha Eunice Blume, b. Nov. 3, 1836, d. Mch. 7, 1903. Children: V-7: Mary Isabell—William Theodore—Alice Eugenia—John Wesley—Martha Emma—Joseph Edward—Maggie Eunice—Annie Elizabeth—Luther McKinnon—Thomas White. Five children died in infancy.

John Washington Fisher (Aug. 8, 1831-Aug. 2, 1908), son of William and Martha McClure Fisher spent most of his seventy-eight years in the neighborhood of the well established Fisher homestead about three miles south of Concord near Cold Water Baptist Church.

His most extended absence was occasioned by his voluntary enlistment, July 4, 1862, and service with Co. F, 57th Regt., N. C. Infantry of the Confederate States Army. Being wounded in service at Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 13, 1862, he was sent home to recuperate. About three months later he rejoined his Company and while begging cornbread and buttermilk, he was captured by the enemy and carried to Richmond, Va., but soon escaped and once more rejoined his Company. Some time later he was again captured and sent to the prison camp in Elmira, N. Y. Through his Masonic affiliation (the officer in charge of this northern army detention camp being a brother Mason), he was made special courier, granted exceptional privileges and when the war was over, he was given a new suit of clothes and enough money to get home.

On July 25, 1855, he was married to Miss Martha Eunice Blume. To this union fifteen children were born, ten of whom were spared to help care for the aging parents and to be near them at the setting of life's sun.

Mr. Fisher was well known as a successful farmer, ranking among the best in Cabarrus County. He was also equally well known as a good neighbor, a true Christian gentleman and a loyal and faithful worker in the church he loved so dearly.

On August 4, 1908 his body was laid to rest in the Cold Water Baptist Church cemetery beside the body of his faithful wife, who had entered the heavenly rest March 7, 1903.

Luther McKinnon Fisher (May 29, 1876-Dec. 20, 1956), son of John Washington and Martha Eunice Blume Fisher, like his father, possessed a rugged body, a love for farming, an honest heart, a firm faith in God and a great love for and loyalty to his family.

On August 25, 1898 he was married to Miss Anna Lee Kluttz, daughter of James Ransom and Rose Faggart Kluttz, of the Bost Mill Community, Cabarrus County, N. C.

In 1909 the Luther Fisher homestead was permanently established on Highway 73 between Concord and Davidson in his native county, and this home was always a fortress of Christian strength for the eight children born into the home.

Early in life Mr. Fisher joined the Cold Water Baptist Church and soon after their marriage Mrs. Fisher also became a member of this church. After several of the children had located in Concord, they transferred their church membership to the First Baptist Church of Concord.

The Luther Fishers celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on August 25, 1948, when their children honored them at an open house.

On December 20, 1956, Mr. Fisher passed through the gateway eternal at the bid of the Master's Voice, and his body was laid to rest in Oakwood Cemetery, Concord.

CHAPTER V-6

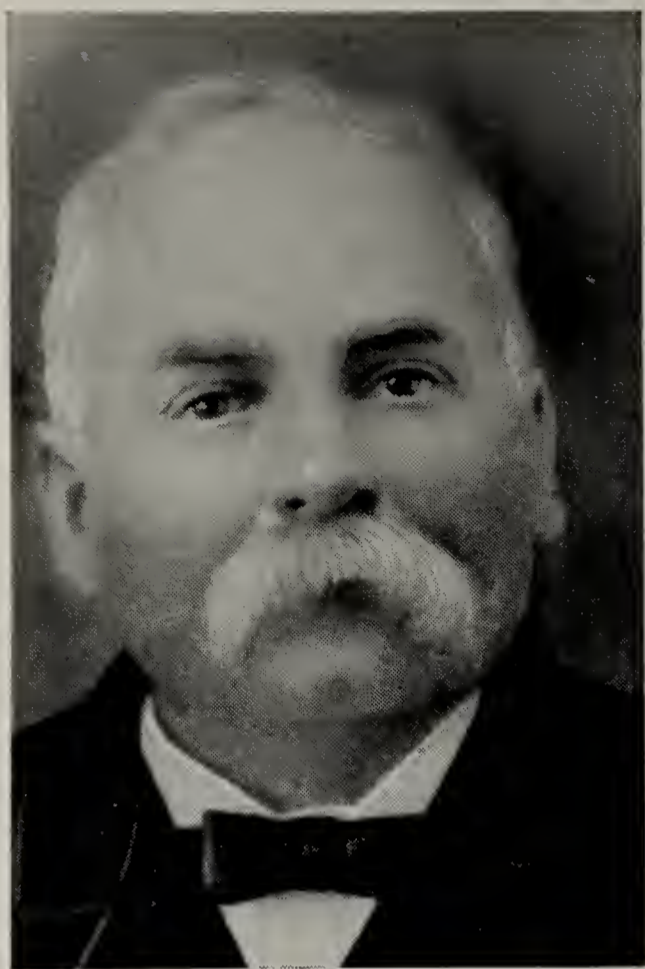

THE DESCENDANTS OF JOSEPH MORRISON

Son of William Fisher

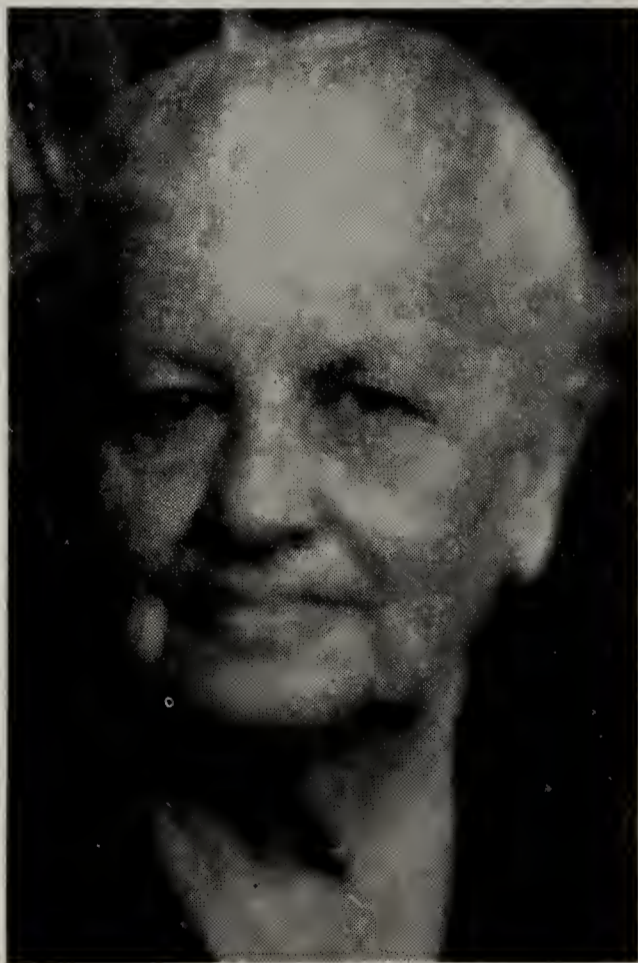

V-6 JOSEPH MORRISON FISHER, b. Apr. 13, 1849, d. July 9, 1921, m. Apr. 26, 1870, Martha Jane Kluttz, b. Nov. 16, 1854, d. Aug. 2, 1930. Children: V-7: William Morrison—Nannie Elma.

The stability of our democracy has been influenced greatly by having stability within the family. This heritage Joseph Morrison Fisher passed on to those who were to follow. He had a good home rooted in the soil and in the church. As a farmer in No. Eleven Township of Cabarrus County, he was successful. His church, while in the country, was Center Methodist Church where he was Sunday School Superintendent for many years. A kind man who had a great sense of humor, he was often sought out for counsel and helpful guidance.

Martha Kluttz Fisher, the wife of Joseph Morrison Fisher, was a woman with that wonderful ability of being able to make her house a home for her family and a place of warm friendliness for their friends. She was a good cook and especially enjoyed preparing the old-fashioned Dutch meals. While they were members of Center Methodist Church, it was on a circuit. When he came that way to preach, the circuit rider would have to spend the night and the circuit rider minister would always find an open door, a good bed, and a well-filled table at the Fisher home.

V-7 WILLIAM MORRISON FISHER, b. July 18, 1872, d. Oct. 6, 1953, m. Aug. 16, 1893, Catherine L. Robinson, b. July 6, 1870. Children: V-8: Elbert, b. June 23, 1894, d. May 1, 1896—Dr. William Robert.

William Morrison Fisher grew up on his father's farm in Cabarrus County and also spent some of his adult life as a farmer. At the age of twelve, he suffered a leg injury while working on the farm. He remained partially crippled during the remainder of his life, but this did not keep him from leading a most active life. In 1901, the family moved to Concord, and he expended his energy in public works. He was most active in the interest of school and of welfare work. He participated in farm organizations and the Woodmen of the World. He was active in the work of Central Methodist Church to which he had moved his membership when he came to Concord.

Mrs. William Morrison Fisher was Catherine Robinson before her marriage. She carried into the Fisher family a goodly heritage of her own. She, too, has always been interested in the home and in the church. Seeing that her children had care and guidance was important to her. One of her children, however, was stricken with a fatal disease at the age of two. The other, Dr. W. R. Fisher, developed into manhood under her Christian influence and guiding hand. While at Center Methodist Church she often led the singing. At Central Methodist Church, which she also joined upon moving to Concord, she was most active in the Sunday School and women's organizations. For many years she was a circle chairman in the Woman's Society of Christian Service, and this organization honored her with a life membership.

V-8 DR. WILLIAM ROBERT FISHER, b. Apr. 25, 1896, m. Jan. 29, 1918, Eugenia Jones, b. June 2, 1896.

Dr. William Robert Fisher grew up in Cabarrus County and the City of Concord. He was graduated from Atlanta Dental College in 1917. The First World War was at its peak when Dr. Fisher finished school and he was commissioned a First Lieutenant in the Army to serve as a dentist. At the close of the war, he located in Concord as a practicing dentist and has continued his service there since that time. He has the longest record of service of any who is still practicing dentistry in Concord. He was the first president of the reorganized Cabarrus Dental Society and a member of the State and National Dental Societies. As a churchman, he has meant much to Central Methodist Church in Concord. As a boy he often worked the hand pump on the old organ. He served for nearly forty years as treasurer and secretary of the Sunday School, the latter office he still holds. He was a steward and usher in the church for nearly thirty years. Civic organizations in which he has been active include: a charter member of the first Kiwanis Club in Concord; W.O.W. in which he has been Counsel Commander and a state officer; P.O.S. of A.; Knights of Pythias and D.O.K.K. One of his great loves is the out of doors, and he has been an avid gardener and an ardent hunter and fisherman.

Mrs. William Robert Fisher is the former Eugenia Jones of Atlanta, Georgia. She met her husband during their college days and after their marriage came to Concord to help him establish their home, which she has done in a very fine way. She has won the respect and admiration of those she has met in her new environment. Not only does the preparation of meals come as an art to her but also in her ability with her garden and flowers. She is a member of the Nosegay Garden Club. She joined the ladies auxiliary of the Woodmen of the World and was elected to local and state offices in that organization. Her church work has also been one of her great interests. At Central Methodist Church she has been president of her Sunday School class, a circle chairman in the Woman's Society of Christian Service and has been honored with a life membership in the WSCS.

THE DESCENDANTS OF SOLOMON

Son of George Fisher, Jr.

VI-5 SOLOMON FISHER, b. Oct. 17, 1803, d. Nov. 15, 1884, m. Dec. 23, 1829, Mary Quilman, b. May 13, 1811, d. Oct. 31, 1873. Children: VI-6: George Monroe—Moses—Mary Catherine—Leah Lenora—Elizabeth Louise—Margaret Magdeline—Martha Jane—John Valentine—Julia Ann—William Henry—Rebecca Josephine—Samuel R.—Solomon Thornton.

The following excerpts are from a letter written by Rev. C. B. Heller to Mr. Jim Fisher after the death of Solomon Fisher:

“Solomon Fisher . . . was a venerable man, wearing a long beard of about the same length as his first cousin, Samuel R. Fisher, the Editor of the Reformed Church Messenger. . . . Nothing but illness kept him from the services of the church, and he was never ill until his death which . . . was no illness at all but . . . the weakness of old age . . . He has always been temperate in every thing, never over ate nor over worked himself . . . His whole form, face, and bearing bore the marks of a Christian life well lived.

“No man in the community observed the Sabbath better than he . . . When he was younger . . . He and his neighbors would carry the produce of their plantations once a year, either to Charleston or Sheraw. He never travelled on Sunday on those trips. The other men would drive their teams on during Sunday in haste to get to their destination, but . . . Solomon and his team rested on Sunday and invariably got to Charleston or Sheraw before they did because their teams had not rested enough and had to go slowly.

“The night he died . . . He felt that the end was near and . . . until the last . . . He recited from memory Scripture verses and questions and answers from the Heidelberg Catechism . . .

“In the earlier days when the worship of the Church was in German he always led the singing. He was a Christ-like man, just and honorable in all his dealings and everybody trusted him. . . .”

The Descendants of ELIZABETH LOUISE KLUTTZ Daughter of Solomon Fisher

VI-6 ELIZABETH LOUISE FISHER, b. Mch. 28, 1837, d. Nov. 9, 1888, m. Mch. 24, 1863, Moses Kluttz, b. 1815, d. 1901. Children: VI-7: Evann Amanda—Harvey A., b. 1864, d. 1889—Harriett, b. 1868, d. 1896—Margaret Elizabeth, b. 1871, d. 1874—George Stroble.

Elizabeth Louise Fisher, daughter of Solomon and Mary Quillman Fisher, married Moses Kluttz in 1863 and lived at the old Kluttz home place adjoining the Fisher property in Cabarrus County, N. C. Their graves are located east of the historic Lowerstone Reform Church in Rowan County, N. C.

Elizabeth was known for her wonderful influence in her home and community. She contributed unselfishly to the welfare of her family and neighbors. A few days before her death, she was helping nurse sick neighbors, who were stricken with typhoid fever by reason of an epidemic in the community. Through this unselfish service, she contracted the malady herself.

Her husband had been married previously to Eva Texter, who died July 29, 1862. To this union were born seven children: Crawford, 1841-1862; John C., 1843-1864; Alfred, 1845-1920; Mary H. Bost, 1849-1918; Martha Jane Fisher, 1854-1930; Luther A., 1858-1859; and Sarah A. Troutman, 1860-1936. This information about his first wife and children was taken from a Pictorial Bible published by Robert Sears, 181 William Street, New York City and purchased by Moses Kluttz for six dollars in 1860. The information was written by hand in beautiful script by Moses Kluttz.

George Stroble, better known to his friends and kinsmen as "George Strobe," was born in Cabarrus County. He was the youngest child of Moses (1815-1901) and Elizabeth Fisher Klutz (1837-1888), both of German descent who had settled in this section of the state, migrating from Pennsylvania before the War between the States. George Stroble was named after George Fisher, Sr., a private in the Revolutionary War who served as body guard to George Washington at Valley Forge and the Reverend P. A. Stroble, pastor of Organ Lutheran Church, Rowan County.

In 1896 on a snowy Thanksgiving day, George was married to Jennie Agnes, the fourth daughter of Michael Caleb, a Confederate Veteran (1834-1926), and Elizabeth Dry Rinehardt (1838-1914) in their home.

Dr. George Cox performed the ceremony. To this union were born four sons and four daughters, one dying in infancy. Their early married life was spent at the old Kluttz home in No. 6 Township, moving to Concord in 1915.

The life of George Kluttz includes many aspects and deeds of kindness to his fellowmen. He very proudly worked with his cousins to organize the first Fisher Reunion which was held at his Uncle Samuel Fisher's house. The place of this reunion was within sight of Fisher School, one of the first public schools of North Carolina. This land being donated by George Stroble in memory of his mother.

During his entire life he gave generously of his time to all causes which benefited his native state. He was active in many progressive movements especially as Highway Commissioner. For a livelihood, he dealt in wholesale and retail lumber business in the Southeast. In the later years of his life, he was in the real estate business.

A TRIBUTE—by Major Roy Webster

Mrs. Margaret Fisher Litaker was one of those rare spirits whom to know is to love.

Schooled in the hardships common to the people of the South in the period following the War between the States, "Aunt Mag," as she was fondly and affectionately known, emerged triumphant and victorious over all difficulties.

She was a woman of tremendous energy, boundless courage, and an abiding faith. Every one whose good fortune it was to come in contact with her felt the power of her pleasing and joyful personality and received a remarkable uplift of the spirit from her sensible, witty, and humorous remarks. Those who knew her were always glad to have the opportunity of enjoying the hospitality of her happy home. Her radiant and cheerful outlook upon life will ever be remembered and treasured by her relatives and her many friends.

A TRIBUTE—by Dr. H. A. McCullough

My associations and subsequent knowledge of Charlie Litaker make it most pleasant to speak or write of him.

As a student in The Collegiate Institute, Mt. Pleasant, N. C., Charlie held the confidence of the Faculty and the students. This confidence he never abused or misused.

Since those pleasant days, I have kept in touch with Charlie and his fine family in Albemarle. He justly holds a commendable place in his church and in his community.

Those who know him best will remember him longest.

CHAPTER VI-6

THE DESCENDANTS OF MARTHA JANE ISENHOUR

Daughter of Solomon Fisher

VI-6 MARTHA JANE FISHER, b. Mch. 14, 1841, d. Dec. 11, 1925, m. Rufus Peter Isenhour, b. Dec. 31, 1835, d. May 21, 1878. Children: VI-7: Laura Francis—Charles Alexander—George Thorton—John S.—S. DeBerry, b. Feb. 5, 1873, d. Sept. 15, 1914—William Nelson.

Martha Jane Fisher married Rufus Peter Isenhour upon his return from service in the Confederate Army. They established a home in the hills of Cabarrus County, near Concord, N. C. The family knew all the hardships of the reconstruction period that followed the Civil War. Life was very rugged and only grim determination enabled the family to exist on the small farm. All food and clothing had to be produced from the land. When the oldest son was twelve years old, Rufus Peter died. The care of the family became the sole responsibility of Martha Jane. The widow and her six small children faced the many years of poverty with courage so typical of the women of the South. With an old white mule and the help of the boys, she managed to feed and clothe her family. The children attended a one-room school for the few months a year it operated. She lived to see all her children grow into adults and take their place in the community. She is buried beside her husband in St. John's Lutheran Cemetery, near Mt. Pleasant, N. C. Her Christian character, her courage in the face of hardship, and her devotion to her family places her among the sterling women of the South.

(3-14-1841—12-11-1925)

Mr. Rufus Peter Isenhour
(12-31-1835—5-21-1878)

Rufus Peter Isenhour was a private in Company F, 57th N. C. Infantry. He enlisted at the age of 29 at Concord, N. C. and was detailed to work on a gunboat at Kinston, February, 1864. He was wounded near Charleston, W. Va., August 22, 1864 and placed in a hospital. He was hit by a "Minnie Ball" in battle near Martinsburg, W. Va. and captured September 20, 1864, near Mt. Crawford or Harrisonburg, Va. Listed as a Prisoner of War, September 26, 1864 and sent to the United States General Hospital, Point Lookout, Maryland. In this hospital on January 28, 1865, he took the Oath of Allegiance to the United States and listed his residence as Cabarrus County, N. C.

His first wound was a gunshot in the leg above the right ankle. The "Minnie Ball" was not removed from his lungs and was the cause of his death a few years after discharge. He was discharged, June 28, 1865. His war record describes him as: dark complected, brown hair, blue eyes, height 5 feet 11½ inches. His simple Christian faith, his loyalty to his state, and his determination to help rebuild his native state placed him among the immortal.

Oldest son of Rufus P. and Martha Jane Fisher Isenhour, born in No. 11 Township, Cabarrus County, N. C., married Flora Lizzette Litaker, who died August 11, 1921.

His father, a veteran of the Confederacy, died when he was twelve years old leaving him the main support of his mother, sister, and four brothers. The family owned a small hilly farm and one old mule. The family had a bare subsistence. His education was limited to four months a year in a one-room log school. He became an avid reader and student throughout life. After marriage, he moved to another hilly farm on Coldwater Creek, an inheritance of his wife. His life as a farmer was terminated by an accident in a cotton gin in which he lost his right arm.

His genial good nature and sound judgment caused his neighbors to induce him to enter politics. He was elected Register of Deeds for Cabarrus County and served two terms. At this time he moved to Concord and lived on the same lot the remainder of his life.

After serving on the City School Board several terms, he was elected Mayor of Concord and served three terms. Later he re-entered county politics, and was elected Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners for three terms. The Democratic party elected him Chairman of the Executive Committee, and he held this position for over twenty years, until his death.

He was baptised at Lowerstone Reformed Church, Rowan County and later confirmed at St. John's Lutheran Church, Cabarrus County. He and his wife were among the organizers and charter members of Mt. Hermon Lutheran Church. Upon removal to Concord, he transferred his membership to St. James Lutheran Church and held membership there the remainder of his life. He served a number of terms on the Church Council and was a member of the Building Committee for the erection of the new church building.

After his terms as Register of Deeds, he entered the real estate and general insurance business and remained in this field for over thirty years. He was President of the Cabarrus Mutual Fire Insurance Company and a Director of the Concord Perpetual Building and Loan Association at the time of his death. For many years, he was friend and counselor to anyone who might come to him. The Concord Tribune said editorially at time of his death:

"Every phase of public life felt the influence of this versatile man.

Mr. Harry Edgar Isenhour

Born to the farm he was forced to readjust his life to a new environment when circumstances made the life of a farmer impossible for him, and during his long residence in Concord he was never stingy in his public service.

“Mayor, County Commissioner, Churchman, School Commissioner, politician, private citizen—in all these roles he wore the robes with simplicity and sincerity which marked him as a man worthy of the public confidence which he enjoyed.”

VI-8 HARRY E. ISENHOUR, b. Dec. 7, 1893, m. Elma Cauble, b. Aug. 22, 1895. Children: VI-9: Mary Elizabeth—Charles Robert—Elma Ann.

Harry, the eldest son of Charles Alexander and Lizzette Litaker Isenhour, was educated in the Public Schools of Cabarrus County and Concord; Mt. Pleasant Collegiate Institute, Class 1912; Newberry College, A.B., Class 1914. Honorary LL.D., Lenoir Rhyne College, 1952. Distinguished Service Award, Newberry College, 1957.

Among his accomplishments were the following:

Served a number of terms as Vice-Chairman of Council of Haven Lutheran Church; Secretary of Home Mission Committee of N. C. Lutheran Synod for over 25 years; Secretary Investment Committee, N. C. THE DESCENDANTS OF JOHN VALENTINE

Son of Solomon Fisher

VI-6 JOHN VALENTINE FISHER, b. Apr. 13, 1843, d. Apr. 7, 1928, m. Catherine Lavina Holshouser, b. June 30, 1843, d. Oct. 30, 1924. John Valentine Fisher was born in Cabarrus County and was educated in the public schools. He served as a flag bearer during the entire Civil War. The first year after the war he married Catherine Lavina Holshouser, who had served as postmistress throughout the war. He was a successful farmer. To this marriage eight children were born—the seven pictured and Mary Ellen, who died in infancy. Willie Calvin Augustus was a locomotive engineer on the Cotton Belt Railway. Lillie Ann Eugenia (Jennie) was the wife of John Henry Thornton Fisher, farmer and cabinet maker. James Luther was Vice-President of the Wachovia Bank & Trust Company. Thomas Clapp is founder and senior member of the Fisher-Thompson Hardware Company. George Alexander is Assistant Cashier of the Scottish Bank. Katie Belle is the widow of W. A. Bost, locomotive engineer on the Southern Railway. Charles Eli, retired, was Chief Transfer Clerk for the Southern Railway. This entire family has been prominent in church and civic life.

The following excerpt was taken from Judge Clark's "North Carolina Regiments," Vol. 1, Page 408: "The regiment (eighth) went into the assault on Fort Harrison with about one hundred and seventy-five men and officers. That night there were only twenty-five, commanded by Lieutenant Dugger, of Company F. The others were killed, wounded and captured. The color-bearer, J. R. Barnhardt, finding that he could not escape capture, tore the old flag that had seen so much service to pieces to keep it from falling into the hands of the enemy. Of the color-guard, Robert W. Sawyer, Company K, was killed and Joseph N. Spence, Company A, was wounded. John V. Fisher, Company H, was then appointed color-bearer, and carried the flag till the end of the war, Barnhardt having been captured and not getting back to the regiment."

Mr. Fisher was born in Eastern Rowan County, the son of John V. and Catherine Holshouser Fisher. His father helped organize the old Bethany Academy from which Mr. Fisher later graduated. He liked to tell about his father's offer that led him to get a college education. His father told him that he gave all of his children a colt but that if Jim wanted to go to college he would give him $125.00 instead. He decided to take the offer and, with the $125.00, went to Oberlin Business School in Ohio for a year. He returned to Rowan County and became an assistant teacher to Professor L. H. Rothrock at Bethany. He realized that he should have more training and after a year of teaching entered Roanoke College, at Salem, Va. He earned most of the money that put him through the four years at the college. He was an outstanding athlete at the college, excelling as a trackman and as a football player. He served as president of his class during his four years. Returning to Rowan County, he succeeded Professor Rothrock at the academy and taught for three years.

For several years he worked for the Southern Railway as cashier and as chief clerk, and later began the career that was to occupy his life—banking—working first as a bookkeeper for the First National Bank, in Salisbury.

For thirty-six years, until retiring because of illness in January, 1950, Mr. Fisher was actively connected with Wachovia Bank & Trust Company's Salisbury office. He joined the Banking Department in 1914 and was elected Assistant Cashier in 1919. He was promoted to Cashier and placed in charge of the Salisbury office in 1922 and was advanced to Vice-President in 1927. He was also Chairman of the Salisbury Board. His association with the bank was marked by a period of large growth. He was president of Group 8 of the North Carolina Bankers Association.

In 1927, by an unprecedented majority vote, Mr. Fisher was elected to the Salisbury City Council and then served as Mayor for two terms. During his administration the present managerial form of government was inaugurated. This is considered one of the most constructive moves ever made in local municipal affairs. Through the years he gave of his time and talent to countless civic organizations and enterprises. He was a charter member, director, and president of the Salisbury Kiwanis Club; member of the Board of Trustees and treasurer of the Rowan Public Library; Vice-Chairman, treasurer, and member of the Board of Trustees of the Rowan Memorial Hospital; director and treasurer of the Salisbury Chamber of Commerce for many years; and he served as financial adviser and treasurer of about every non-profit organization for public service in Salisbury and Rowan County. He was on the Board of the China Grove Cotton Mills. For many years he was an active leader in Boy Scout work.

His outstanding record of civic service was exceeded only by his record of loyal and effective service in and through his Church—for he was indeed a man of deep and abiding spiritual convictions. For almost fifty years he was a member of St. John's Lutheran Church and for more than forty years a member of her Council. For several terms he served as Vice-Chairman of the Church Council and treasurer of the Church. He was the leader and teacher of the Young Men's Bible Class for nearly thirty years. That class was named in his honor in 1947 on its twenty-fifth anniversary. He was an active member of both the local and the state Brotherhood and served as director and president of each. For many years he was a director on two of the operating boards of the United Lutheran Church in America: the Board of Ministerial Pensions and Relief and the Board of Publications. He was an official delegate of the North Carolina Synod to U.L.C.A. conventions on six occasions.

As a banker, as a citizen, as a churchman and friend, Mr. Fisher was regarded with high esteem and affection by the people of Salisbury and Rowan County. In recognition of his life-long and unselfish religious and community service, the title of Rowan County's "Man of the Half-Century 1900-1950" was conferred upon him by the Salisbury Lions Club shortly before his death.

Mr. Fisher was married to Nolah Anzonetta Misenheimer, daughter of P. R. and Mollie Misenheimer on Thanksgiving Day, 1903. She was born in Stanly County and attended the Stanly County Schools, completing her education at Mt. Amoena Seminary in Mt. Pleasant, N. C.

Mrs. Fisher taught music at Bethany Academy, near Rockwell, N. C., and it was here that she met James Luther Fisher.

Their children are Mary Katharine and Nolah Anzonetta.

Mrs. Fisher is very active in St. John's Lutheran Church. She has been a Sunday School teacher, a member of the Church Choir, President of the United Lutheran Church Women of St. John's, pianist for the Primary Department, and a member of the Church Council. She has attended Sunday School every Sunday for forty years, which is the longest record held by any member of St. John's Sunday School.

In 1903 he became a record clerk at the Salisbury Freight Office. He worked his way up to Traveling Passenger Agent for the Southern Railway. Due to the amount of time that he was forced to be away from home, he left the Southern in 1917 and became a bookkeeper with the Wachovia Bank & Trust Company in Salisbury, N. C. In 1918 he accepted a position as Ticket Agent in the Consolidated Ticket Office for All Railroads, Washington, D. C. but left that organization on January 1, 1919 to accept a position in Salisbury as Assistant Cashier of the First National Bank. In 1952 the Scottish Bank purchased the assets of the First National Bank and Mr. Fisher has remained in the capacity of Assistant Cashier and as Manager of the Drive-In Branch. Despite his age, he continues to be very active and has acquired many friends because of the extra accommodations and friendliness that he offers his customers. To date he has served over forty years in banking. Although many Fishers have served in banks in this locality, it is doubtful if any have served any more years than he.

In 1923 Mr. Fisher was elected Treasurer and Trustee of the Board of Trustees of Catawba College, Salisbury, N. C. He has served faithfully in these capacities to this date. In addition, he served for many years as a member of the Consistory in the Reformed Church, as Treasurer, and as Sunday School Superintendent.

John Burgess Fisher was born in Salisbury, Rowan County, North Carolina, the son of George A. and Iula Belle Cheely Fisher. Educated in the city schools and a graduate of the Class of 1940 of Catawba College, Salisbury, Mr. Fisher first worked as a bookkeeper with the Wachovia Bank & Trust Company, leaving in July, 1943 to serve with the 37th Infantry Division in the South Pacific during the Second World War. He was discharged in January, 1946 and in April of that year was married to Miss Esther Sloan Lesslie. In February of that year, he went to work for the Security Bank and Trust Company, Salisbury and, after working in various departments, was made Assistant Cashier in August, 1949. In January, 1957, he was advanced to the position of Cashier-Treasurer, which position he now holds. From June, 1956 until his graduation in June, 1958, he was a student of the Rutgers University Graduate School of Banking, New Brunswick, New Jersey.

Active in civic affairs, Mr. Fisher has served as both treasurer and president of the Salisbury Junior Chamber of Commerce, receiving the Key Member Award in 1948 as well as the Distinguished Service Award both in 1948 and '49. This award is better known as "The Young Man of the Year." A member of the Lions Club, he served as the Salisbury president in 1953, District Zone Chairman in 1954, and Deputy District Governor in 1955. An active promoter of the YMCA, he is treasurer of the building fund and a member of the board of directors. Since its inception in 1948, he has served continuously as treasurer of the Rowan Unit of the American Cancer Society. Throughout the past decade, Mr. Fisher has participated in and taken an active lead in many civic projects and drives.

A loyal Presbyterian, Mr. Fisher has served his church in many capacities, as Deacon first and then Elder and Clerk of the Session. A Sunday School teacher of the Young People's Class, he also serves as an associate supervisor of the Young People's work.

Esther Sloan Lesslie Fisher was born in Monticello, Arkansas, the daughter of a Presbyterian minister. An alumnus of Erskine College, Due West, South Carolina, she is a graduate of the Salisbury Business College. Joining the staff of the Wachovia Bank & Trust Company in Salisbury in 1943, she served as secretary for seven years to Mr. James L. Fisher, Vice-President and head of the bank, whom she held in great esteem and admiration. Upon his retirement in 1950, she joined the staff of Catawba College, Salisbury and is now secretary to the president of that college.

Mrs. Fisher has been very active in her church, devoting her talents mostly toward the musical worship service. She has served as pianist, senior choir director, junior choir director and soloist. In addition, she has taught Sunday School and has been very active in the Woman's Society, having served in many capacities in that department.

Katie was born a twin to George Alexander in Eastern Rowan County, the daughter of John V. and Catherine Holshouser Fisher. Katie was musically inclined and as a girl she often sat in and played in her brother's string band, the banjo being her favorite instrument. She later studied piano and organ under Nola Misenheimer, who was later to become her sister-in-law. While still in her teens she became organist at Lowerstone Church, a position that she held until the Fisher family moved to Salisbury. Shortly thereafter, she became organist at the First Reformed Church, Salisbury. After her marriage she moved her membership to St. John's Lutheran Church, where she is still an active member.

For a number of years Katie was a very successful Sunday School teacher of a teen age boy's class and later a girl's class. For many years she has been a very active member of the Order of the Eastern Star and was Chaplain of this group for several years. When the Veterans Hospital at Salisbury asked for volunteer workers, Katie immediately volunteered and now has to her credit 2500 hours of service. She early became a favorite with the patient personnel and this she has remained. Katie is one of Salisbury's most beloved citizens. This is due to her complete selflessness and her inveterate desire to do good for others. A local newspaper columnist once said: "She has more friends than anyone that I have ever seen." Her hobby, unconsciously, is collecting good deeds, and her cabinet overflows. It is said of her that while others talk of performing some worthwhile service for those who need it, Katie does it. At seventy-six, she is as active as many people twenty years her junior. Several months ago she attended a square dance, given in honor of her grandson, and danced practically every number.

A TRIBUTE TO WILLIAM HENRY FISHER

by Dr. R. A. Goodman, Pastor at Holy Trinity Church
Mount Pleasant, N. C., 1911-1921

One of the signal joys of life, a minister's life in particular, is to know the worth and friendship of one of "God's Gentlemen." During my ministry at Holy Trinity, 1911-1921, I was privileged to associate in our Lord's work with not a few of such saints. One was William H. Fisher.

On my arrival in Mt. Pleasant, one of the first to greet me with a warm hand of welcome was the subject of this brief tribute of affection, Mr. Fisher. During the years he was steady and without change in his friendship and loyalty. He willingly and efficiently served the Church in numerous capacities, as chairman of the Council, as promoter of the Sunday School, and as frequent delegate to church conferences and assemblies. In every way he was a support and pillar of the Church of Christ, humble and unostentatious in his faith and service.

Outside the church in the community life, Mr. Fisher was marked as a reliable citizen. He promoted the social welfare of all by his interest in education and good government. William H. Fisher belonged to that group of extraordinary men who lived and wrought during the trying days of the Civil War and immediately thereafter. Without complaint or bitterness, he gave his heart and hand to rebuild the shattered fortunes of a prostrate South. It was the like of him who by toil and perseverance rebuilt homes, reared Christian families, revived the Church and cultural institutions, and stabilized the economic fabric of society. Never has a group of men with so little done so much! William Fisher was one of that noble company.

Until this day, I can see him moving with a quiet dignity in his hospitable home, in the Church, and on the streets of Mt. Pleasant. I thank God for such men. I cannot forget him.

Mrs. Sallie Fisher Thomason, daughter of William Henry Fisher and Elizabeth Alice Barringer, was born October 20, 1876, near Mount Olive Lutheran Church, five miles north of Mount Pleasant, N. C. Her education began at Tammany Hall, a free school one mile from Mt. Pleasant and continued at Mt. Amoena Seminary, from which she graduated in 1896. In 1898, she married John Washington Thomason. Their seven children are living proof of the truly Christian home they have maintained in the Franklin community five miles west of Salisbury, N. C.

She has always been a woman of the finest influence in her home, her community, and in Franklin Presbyterian Church, which she joined in 1900, and in which she has taught the Women's Bible Class for forty-seven years. It can truly be said of her: "Who can find a virtuous woman? for her price is far above rubies." Proverbs 31:10.

It is a real privilege to have the opportunity to pay tribute to my nephew, Claude F. Thomason.

He graduated from Mount Pleasant Collegiate Institute, Mount Pleasant, N. C. in 1926. While in school there, he excelled in athletics and in Literary Society work. Upon graduation, he began work with Cannon Mills Cotton Department. In his work there, he has made consistent advancement, and is now a Cotton Classing Technician.

Claude was reared in a Christian home, from which he inculcated high Christian principles, which have dominated his life in manhood. He has always been loyal to his old family church, the Franklin Presbyterian, at Salisbury, North Carolina. He joined this church at the age of twelve, and kept his membership there for many years. He served timely and well in many offices of the church, during which time the Church made much progress in increased membership and improvement in Church property, much of this due in no little part to his conscientious efforts. In 1957, he and his family gave the Church building materials for a new sanctuary in honor of his parents.

Claude has gone about his daily life in a quiet unassuming way, however, he has had the fortitude to place first things first, regardless of the popular flow of events. He has carried the high principles of duty, honesty, integrity and fair play into his business life and has been signally successful. He strives valiantly to live up to all the tenets of a Christian life, and in him the words "Christian Gentlemen" have been given full meaning.

Max DeBerry Thomason was born and reared in the Franklin Community just west of Salisbury, North Carolina. He finished high school at Boyden High in Salisbury and graduated in 1933 from North Carolina State College in Raleigh, North Carolina with a B.S. degree in Mechanical Engineering. He took ROTC at College and was commissioned 2nd Lt., United States Army Reserve.

Upon graduation, he began work in the Engineering Department of Cannon Mills Co., Kannapolis, North Carolina. His engineering acumen was quickly recognized and advancement came fast. His advancement was interrupted in 1942 by four and one-half years of service in World War II. Being a 2nd Lt. in the Army Reserve, he was immediately called into service when the U. S. entered the war. During this service, he spent three and one-third years overseas, in Iceland, England, Ireland, France, Luxembourg, Germany, and Czechoslovakia, and served in the following battles and campaigns: Normandy, Northern France, Ardennes, Rhineland, and Central Europe. He received the Bronze Star Medal, American Defense Service Medal and the European, African, Middle East Service Medal. In this tenure of merited service, he rose to the rank of Captain. Since his discharge at the end of the war, he remained in the Army Reserve in which his advancement has been continuous and is now a commissioned Lt. Colonel in the Army Reserves.

When discharged from the army at the end of the war, he returned to his position with Cannon Mills Company, where he has continued to render valuable service and is now Plant Engineer. He is a registered Professional Engineer in North Carolina, and a member of American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Max was reared in a devout Christian home and those high principles of Christianity which were instilled in him in childhood have guided him in manhood and in the rearing of his own family—with the able assistance of his energetic Christian wife, Billie.

Max and his family are members of the First Presbyterian Church in Kannapolis, N. C., and he is also a Rotarian and a member of the American Legion.

A Tribute to Ora Nadine Thomason by Elizabeth Spence

"I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." These words of Paul must have guided Ora as she undertook to continue her education after she was married and had four children (the youngest 18 months old).

In June, 1955, she decided to finish college and teach; having finished Mitchell College, a two year school, before her marriage.

Her love for children had prompted her to choose this field. Knowing she would have two long years in college and several sessions of summer school, she enrolled at Catawba College as a day student. In addition to commuting each day, she had her housework to do, studying, looking after the children and all that goes with housekeeping and looking after a family of four.

Although her graduation day in June, 1957, was a big day for her, her family and friends; the real reward for her efforts came when she began teaching her class of first grade children at Hartsell School in the fall of 1957. There was her challenge. The greetings each morning from the children, the "short" bunches of flowers presented with their love for their teacher, and the notes "I love you" (with a little heart drawn beside it) were all the encouragement she needed to know that teaching would be a worthwhile profession. Her efforts had not been in vain!

Ora Fisher McEachern was a true exponent of Christianity. She lived the Beatitudes of her Lord. Gentle and pure in spirit, considerate and merciful in her judgments, loyal and generous in her devotions, pitiful to the needy ones, lovely in her manners, and without guile, she attained unto the fullness of Sainthood.

Miss Ora was a faithful member of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, Mt. Pleasant, North Carolina and gave joyful cooperation to all its activities. Her pleasing personality made for her a host of friends who sorrowed at her early passing. Of her it can be said, "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God."

VI-7 ARTHUR WILLIAM FISHER, b. Jan. 12, 1890, m. June 17, 1925, Loula Schaeffer, b. Sept. 5, 1896. Children: VI-8: Margaret Elizabeth—Anna Barbara—William Schaeffer.

Arthur William Fisher was born in Mount Pleasant, North Carolina, in sight of the buildings of the Mount Pleasant Collegiate Institute, from which he graduated before entering Newberry College. At Newberry, he received the Bachelor of Arts degree in 1909, after having won distinction both as a student and as an athlete. From the beginning, his life was one of action, and looking facts in the face, dwelling with them as such, and cherishing no delusions.

After serving as the principal of a school in Laurens, South Carolina, for two years, he entered the textile industry with Watts Mills, serving successively as shipping clerk, bookkeeper, and cotton classer. In each of these areas his work commanded the respect and confidence of every one associated with the company.

During World War I, Mr. Fisher was attached to Battery E, 318 Field Artillery, 81st Division. He completed the officers' training course in France but declined the commission on account of the cessation of hostilities. His superior officers easily detected the gravity of his character, and his mental and physical vigor commended him to those about him.

Returning home and receiving his honorable discharge from the Army in 1919, he became associated with the Cotton Department of the Cannon Manufacturing Company. This company's officials at once perceived that his personality and character gave confidence to everyone and such dignity to his work that he was promoted step by step—in 1923, to Head of the Cotton Department; in 1928, to Vice-President; and in 1933, to a Director of the Corporation. He has grown to be a leader in almost every phase of the cotton textile industry. At times the road was very rough, and the struggle very hard, but the movement has always been upward.

Mr. Fisher has been just as effective in his church affiliations as he has been successful in his business associations. A life long devoted Lutheran, he has vastly enriched the North Carolina Synod and the United Lutheran Church in America through his services on such important boards as the Executive Committee of the North Carolina Lutheran Synod, the Board of Trustees of Lenoir Rhyne College, the Board of Publications of the United Lutheran Church in America, the Executive Committee of the North Carolina Brotherhood, and the Executive Committee of the National Lutheran Laymen's Movement. Probably his finest monument will be the long list of Lutheran mission churches that have been built in North Carolina as a result of his fund raising zeal. They speak most eloquently of what he is and what he has meant to his church.

He is a Mason, a member of the Sons of the American Revolution, member of the Cotton Committee of the American Cotton Manufacturers Institute, and the recipient of the honorary degree of Doctor of Commercial Science, Newberry College. A very significant event in his life was his marriage to the lovely and wholesome Miss Loula Belle Schaeffer. Their descendants are listed elsewhere.

The name of Arthur William Fisher is among the foremost in the History of the Fisher Family, admired and unquestioned. He stands dynamic and forceful for what he believes to be right, and fills a unique place both for what he does and for what he is.

N. C. on September 23, 1870. She was the only daughter of Milas
Alexander Holshouser and Sophia (Peeler) Holshouser. She attended Mt. Amoena Seminary, Mt. Pleasant and Marion College, Marion, Virginia. She taught school for several years at Organ Church. On May 18, 1897, she married Lewis D. Peeler. Her husband took over the management of the Holshouser farm, and both were active leaders in their community. They were charter members of Emanuel Lutheran Church and leaders in the organization and work of this church. Mr. and Mrs. Peeler spent the first ten years of their married life on the farm but moved to Salisbury in January, 1907 where her husband had entered business with the Kluttz Grain and Provision Co. as its Secretary and Treasurer. This company finally became the Peeler Wholesale Co., one of the leading wholesale companies in this section. He entered other lines of business, among them the manufacture of soft drinks. The Cheerwine Bottling Co., a leading concern is the result of his labors. In 1921, he became part owner of the Yadkin Hotel and in 1926 took over the management which position he held until his death on January 27, 1931.

The Peelers were active members of St. Johns Lutheran Church where Mrs. Peeler taught a Sunday School class of young girls for many years. Her husband was on the church council and a member of the building committee for the present church. They were both leaders in their church and community.

A TRIBUTE—by Gerald L. Dearing

Lewis Trantham Barringer was born in Spencer, Rowan County, North Carolina, on June 30, 1900, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. John Barringer. His boyhood was spent in Texas, where he attended school. He received his law degree at University of Memphis Law School, Memphis, Tennessee. He became associated with the cotton business in 1920. Since that time he has been connected with every phase of the cotton merchandising industry.

In 1928 he married Miss Josephine Davenport of Dallas, Texas, and has two sons, Lewis Barringer, Jr., and John William Barringer.

This brief outline of his life typifies the anonymity behind which he hides. His is the talent of knowing what should be done and getting it done. His field is not confined to cotton, but extends to politics, economics, legislation and civic development. His recreation is farming. His only addiction—telephones.

Lew Barringer has the ability of making friends and a faculty of inducing loyalty by example. His friendships range from the juvenile irrigation "engineer" on his Mississippi farm—to the White House, and his pride in the accomplishments of the one is as sincere as for the other. His characteristics are as many and as varied as a perfectly cut diamond, flashing in the light, but changing with the occasion. But since he shuns the spotlight, the glow is seen only by those who look closely and know the character of the man. He has been a bulwark in the National Cotton Council since its inception—but seldom, if ever, is identified with Council work. So it is with his other activities, an example of which is the location of the Arnold Engineering Development Center, at Tullahoma, Tennessee. Learning through his complicated intelligence system that the Air Force planned to build a multi-million dollar research laboratory, he decided that it would be well to have it in Tennessee. Prodding, pulling, writing, phoning, urging, pleading he presented the opportunity to the leaders in Tennessee—business, civic and political. He pointed out the site at Tullahoma, the availability of electricity, the inland location, the proximity to Washington. Tennessee got the laboratory, the President came down to dedicate it. Lew Barringer, who conceived the project for Tennessee, was not even on the platform for the dedication, was not mentioned in the flow of oratory. He wanted it that way. This is the character of the man: get the job done, let those who will take the credit.

VIII-9 LEWIS TRANTHAM BARRINGER, JR. was born in Memphis, Tennessee on May 17, 1937. He attended school at Pentecost-Garrison, Memphis, The Choate School at Wallingford, Connecticut, entering Princeton in the fall of 1955—graduating in 1959.

VIII-9 JOHN WILLIAM BARRINGER was born on April 5, 1940 in Memphis, Tennessee. He attended school at Pentecost-Garrison and Presbyterian Day School in Memphis, Tennessee, and The Choate School at Wallingford, Connecticut. He entered Vanderbilt University at Nashville in 1958.
